

Early Liquor License Applications Urged

Licenses of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission are reminded that all current license certificates expire at midnight Dec. 31, and that renewal applications and fees should be sent to the commission prior to Dec. 15. This is necessary to allow ample time for issuance of 1953 certificates by the first of the year, according to Administrator W. H. Baillie.

The mere act of filing an application for a 1953 license will not legally permit an operator to sell alcoholic beverages after December 31 unless he has a valid license certificate or a letter from the Commission authorizing such sale, Baillie said.

South Korean, Who Started Without Penny In Japan Now In Millionaire Class Through Wizardry In Stocks

By FRED SAITO

TOKYO (AP)—The wizard of the booming Japanese stock market is a 37-year-old South Korean who started without a penny of his own in 1945 and now speculates with some 10 million dollars entrusted to him by millions of clients.

His personal fortune is a secret but Matsutomi Ito's lavish way of life is in marked contrast to more than 600,000 other Koreans in Japan. Most of them are poverty-stricken day laborers, looked upon as second-class citizens.

Ito now heads a private stock investment fund with 180 branches throughout the country. The powerful Honganji Buddhist sect with some 10 million followers is one of his best customers.

Japanese brokers look with awe upon this slight young man who adopted a Japanese name and is now a naturalized citizen.

Ito was in the same poor fix as his fellow countrymen in Japan until shortly after World War II.

He came to Japan in 1928. He was only 13 when he came to live with his brother, a factory worker now missing in Korea. Now he is one of Japan's richest men. He lives in a palace-sized house and travels in a limousine driven by a chauffeur.

Starving Tokyo Aided

After the war Ito borrowed money and headed for the countryside to buy food and bring it to starving Tokyo.

"It was a strenuous business but rewarded with 100 per cent profit in the chaotic days when many faced starvation," Ito told an interviewer.

Ito turned away from his fellow Koreans and set about making money.

"I have no friends in the Korean community and don't seek them," he said.

With funds gained from his food dealings, Ito started a stock brokerage business in Tokyo's East End slum district in 1948.

He proved a genius at figuring the twistings and turnings of Japan's bouncing market. He borrowed money from investors and speculated on his own, dividing the profits later.

Ito learned to call the turn and rode the market to a fortune. He's still at it with no sign of weakening in his speculations.

His firm is known as the "Hosen Keizai-kai." Translated that means—despite its way of operation—"Safe Economy Club."
