 The Grovers closed out with a 17-point rush in the final quarter to turn the trick after Roseburg had taken a slight 23-22 edge at the three-quarter mark.

Taft Mountain Ski Area Will Be Opened Soon

Douglas County's spanking new Taft Mountain ski area is expected to be christened shortly after Christmas.

No definite date has been revealed on the opening of the area to public skiing and skating, but major improvements are going into their last stages this month.
 Meanwhile, members of the Umpqua Ski Patrol, who will mother the area and insure safety to the skiers, go to Willamette Pass this Saturday and Sunday for examinations. Officials of the Pacific Northwest Ski Patrol Association will give the exams and later examine the Taft area. The latter inspection is expected next week.
 The improvements on the area up to date are a ski patrol shack, runs and an ice skating pond. Work is currently being done to install two 600-foot ski lifts, a warm up shack and a snack bar.
 The weather has cooperated by blanketing the area with 51 inches of snow and the pond surface with seven inches of ice.
 With the progress of improvements has come increased membership in the Edelweiss Ski Club. Members now number 112.

Durkin Desires Taft Agreement On T-H Statute

NEW YORK — Martin P. Durkin, Secretary of Labor-designate, said Thursday that soon after he takes office he hopes to confer with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and labor leaders to see what Taft-Hartley act amendments could be agreed upon.

Durkin made the announcement in a news conference at President-elect Eisenhower's Hotel Commodore headquarters.
 Taft this week termed Eisenhower's designation of Durkin, a Chicago Democrat, who supported Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for president, as "incredible."

Durkin told newsmen he had no comment on Taft's statement, but when asked if he thought it might be an obstacle to a conference with Taft and labor leaders, he said:

"I don't believe so."
 Durkin reiterated previous assertions he did not regard Taft's statement as a "personal attack on me."

He said he believed relations between the new Republican administration and labor leaders will be "very good."

General Eisenhower Ends Secret Korea Visit

with freshly trained Republic of Korea (ROK) troops.

Talks With High and Low

He talked with the generals and soldiers of high and low ranks, bunkered against sleet, snow and wind in the razor-edged mountains. He talked with troops of the U. S., Korea, Britain, France, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Thai, The Philippines—the nations whose young men keep the northern watch in Asia against encroaching Communism.

The President-elect risked death from Russian-made jet fighters and from snipers and assassins on the ground.
 Eisenhower appeared hardy and rested as he was whisked from command post to command post in light planes.
 Eisenhower's son, Maj. John Eisenhower, was assigned as his father's aide during his tour of Korea.

Top Brass Accompanies

Young Eisenhower is assistant operations officer of the U. S. Third Infantry Division in Korea.
 Also along was a host of brass, including Secretary of Defense designate Charles E. Wilson, the incoming attorney general, Herbert Brownell, Jr., the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Omar Bradley, the Navy's Pacific Commander Adm. Arthur Radford, and the two top Far East commanders Gen. Mark Clark and Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

He watched firing from artillery posts, tramped in the snow and visited freshly wounded at receiving stations in the field.
 Jeeping through the brisk Korean cold Eisenhower wore a fur hooded Air Force parka, field boots and wool olive drab trousers.
 Sometimes he traded his costume for a regular Army field jacket and pile cap.

A news blackout on all movements prevailed from the time he walked from New York's Hotel Commodore as if he were going for a stroll.
 But the general's movements were so carefully shielded many Korean school children and admirers missed him.
 There were banners on the rubble buildings of Seoul welcoming him and one duplicated the slogan of his followers in the United States election by proclaiming "We Like Ike, Too."

Jealous Wife Lured To Death By Voice On TV

MANCHESTER, England — Harry and Elizabeth Ainscow, both 77, had been happily married more than 50 years.

There were the usual quarrels, of course, for Mrs. Ainscow was a bit jealous, as all women are. The other night the wife had just retired to her bedroom upstairs and Ainscow was waiting to hear the end of a symphony concert on the radio.
 "Who has come in? I can hear a woman's voice," the wife called from upstairs.
 The husband, who had risen from his easy chair to go to bed, called back, "No one, dear."

A few moments later he heard a thud. At the bottom of the stairs was his wife, dead.
 At a coroner's inquest, the husband said she must have been hurrying down to see if there was another woman when she stumbled and fell.
 "Why she should be so suspicious about such a very old man I cannot understand," said the coroner in giving a verdict of accidental death.
 "So great was her haste to investigate this strange woman's voice that she did not trouble even to put on her slippers."
 The female voice was that of a woman radio announcer.
