State Farmers Get Less For Meat In Nov.

The prices received by Oregon farmers as of Nov. 15, averaged lower than a month earlier for meat animals except sheep, commercial broilers, eggs, wool, apples and barley, the Crop Reporting Service reports.

These decreases were offset to some extent by increases in the average price of wheat, rye, oats, hay, potatoes, farm chickens and all milk sold at wholesale to plants and dealers; while corn, sheep, turkeys, and milk cows remained unchanged during the month ended Nov. 15.

Wheat averaged $2.16 a bushel on Nov. 15, up 3 cents from a month earlier but one cent below mid-November last year. Rye at $1.75 a bushel was 5 cents above the $1.70 of a month ago and 25 cents above a year ago. Corn remained unchanged at $69.60 per ton on Nov. 15 but was lower than the average of $75 at this time a year ago. Oats strengthened during the month to average $63.80 a ton on Nov. 15, but this is still below the year ago Nov. 15 price of $66.20.

All barley, however, at mid-November averaged $66.70 a ton, $3.80 lower than a month ago; with the sale of malting varieties about over, the price was generally representative of feed barley sales. The price received for all kinds of hay averaged $30.20 a ton on Nov. 15, up $1.70 from Oct. 15. Last year the $1.40 increase from mid-October to mid-November brought the Nov. 15, 1951 average price up to $27.50.

The potato price strengthened during the month to average $3.33 per cwt. on Nov. 15 compared to $2.75 on Oct. 15 and $3.42 at mid-November a year ago. Meat animals continued the decline which started about mid-year, and on Nov. 15 beef cattle averaged $20.10 per cwt., down $1.10 during the month and may be compared to the Nov. 15, 1951, average $23.60 per cwt. compared to the mid-November average a year ago of $31.00. Although sheep at $7.20 per cwt. remained the same from mid-October to mid-November, this average is considerably below the $13.50 received on Nov. 15, 1951; while lambs dropped off from $22.60 at mid-October to $20.99 at mid-November which may be compared to the average of $29.10 on November a year ago.

During the period from mid-October to mid-November egg price changes by grades were mixed, but all grades averaged 58 cents a dozen on Nov. 15 compared to 59 cents on Oct. 15. Price changes for farm chickens and commercial broilers were also mixed with farm chickens averaging 20 cents a pound live weight, up 2 cents from a month earlier, and commercial broilers averaging 32 cents a pound live weight, down 3 cents from Oct. 15.

Compared to October marketings, the number of farm chickens marketed in November is greatly reduced, but the volume of broiler sales remains about the same. As a result of the change in the marketing picture, the average price of all chickens on Nov. 15 comes at 28 cents a pound live weight compared to 25.2 cents on Oct. 15.

Actress Outbids College For Books

HOLLYWOOD — Marilyn Monroe says the University of Southern California has a good claim to her Max Reinhardt collection of manuscript books, but she'll have to think it over.

The curvaceous actress outbid a USC representative this week at an auction of the 178 books used by the late theatrical producer. The university has a Reinhardt collection of about 3,000 items, and lacks only Marilyn's acquisition to complete it.

Backed by a friend who was ready to buy the manuscript books, a USC representative dropped out of the bidding when the actress took it to $1,335.

Lewis F. Steig, USC librarian, said the university's Reinhardt collection is to be made available to
