BERT CUTLACK LEAVES FOR GRAND CAYMAN

Bert Cutlack, who left Drain Oct. 8 by Continental Trailways on the first lap of his journey to the British West Indies, writes Drain friends that he arrived at Tampa, Fla., Oct. 12, and would embark for the island of Grand Cayman Oct. 17.

Before leaving Drain Cutlack had booked passage on a small British ship, the Merco, a converted mine-sweeper, which he found in the harbor unloading coconuts in grain sacks. The letter stated that in order to reach the shore to visit the ship he was obliged to walk on the backs of turtles weighing from 150 to 200 pounds.

Cutlack, who is 78 years of age and a bachelor, moved to Oregon with his parents in 1883. The family settled on a farm east of Yoncalla, where he still makes his home.

When asked why he picked Grand Cayman on which to spend the winter he replied that he wanted to find a place where he would neither see nor hear a logging truck. A lover of nature and solitude he spoke with regret of the disposals of the forests and the invasion of the quiet of the hills by the logging trucks.

According to the travel magazine which he carried, it will take the Merco three weeks to make the trip from Tampa to Grand Cayman, which lies 200 miles northwest of Jamaica. The island is only 22 miles long and from 4 to 8 miles wide. While the Caribbean community as a whole will be packed with winter visitors, the travel magazine stated that it is likely Grand Cayman will sleep undisturbed as it has for over 300 years—"one of the most pleasant and yet, strangely, one of the most forgotten islands of that vast Prussian blue sea of winter sun." On this sparsely settled coral rimmed sand dot Cutlack expects to find his Utopia and on its almost uninhabited beaches pursue in peace his hobby of collecting rocks.
