Engineers Are Killed As Two Trains Collide

GRAND VALLEY, Colo. (AP) — Two trainmen were killed in the head-on collision of a Denver & Rio Grande Western mail train and a freight six miles north of here early Friday.

Witnesses said the 112-car freight train, pulling a 7,000-ton load, apparently was unable to stop and ran through a switch.

The engineers of both trains were killed. They were Fred Keeley, on the mail train locomotive, and Glenn Arnspiger, aboard the freight. Both were from Grand Junction.

Firemen of both trains were injured, but there were no injuries to passengers on the westbound mail train.
