

Judgments Asked In Suits On Timber Transaction

A damage suit in three actions totalling $110,000 has been filed in circuit court at Roseburg.

Albert and Blanche M. Rowe seek judgments of $100,000, $5,000 and $5,000 from John J. and Delia Rogers.

The plaintiffs claim they sold a timber tract with certain protective provisions for the land, a spring and yew trees on the land. The buyer in turn sold to the defendants.

The plaintiffs allege the defendants burned about 20,000 cords of slabwood accumulated during timber cutting operations on the land near Days Creek, failed to dispose of slashings on another parcel of land nearby, and cut yew trees and filled in the spring on another part of the land involved.

New Weapons Give Army Not Only More Firepower But Big Problems As Well

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — New weapons-atomic cannon, guided missiles, rockets are giving the army firepower undreamed of not many years ago but they also are creating serious problems in the already intricate business of running an orderly, efficient battle.

These are among the problems to be worked on in maneuvers, involving 100,000 Army and air men, starting this week in the Carolinas. They are the first big-scale exercises involving the firing or simulated use of virtually all new weapons.

Deciding what weapons to shoot at what target has been a source of argument ever since the advent of artillery and aircraft. The advent on the battlefield of "artillery" that range out from 20 to 300 miles or even hundreds of miles and has a much greater demolition radius is compounding the problem.

Examples Are Cited

The Army's new 280 mm cannon, which like the Corporal missile or the Honest John heavy bombardment rockets fires either atomic or conventional explosive, is an example.

The approximately 11-inch gun has a maximum range of about 30 miles. Under present organization, the gun is considered "corps artillery." That means that control of batteries of the gun rests with the headquarters of a corps—usually is composed of two or three Army divisions. The control does not go back to a higher headquarters, such as a theater command, where coordination of tactical bomber and fighter-bomber aircraft of the Air Force and Navy is maintained.

Yet the range of the 280 mm. gun and bombardment rocket, and especially of the guided missile, reaches out far ahead obliquely to either side of the normal fighting front of a corps.

Some tacticians see in this rigidity of corps control both potential inefficiency and danger, contending that:

1. A corps headquarters can decide to strike a target which is scheduled for or indeed already may have been taken care of by bombing planes sent by a higher headquarters.
2. Without coordination, planes heading for a target may fly into the path of fire from atomic cannon, missiles or rockets.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.
