Current Picture At Indian Theatre Wins High Praise

Sharing high praise from Roseburg theatre-goers is the Cinemascope short subject, "The First Piano Quartet," which is being shown on the same program with "Three Coins in the Fountain." Magnificently photographed in Technicolor and superbly recorded in the new 4-Channel High-Fidelity Stereophonic Sound process, the short is the first to be shown locally in Cinemascope. Almost unbelievable is the difference gained in the enjoyment of the picture and sound over previous short subjects of the same nature photographed and recorded in the old process. Lavishly far backgrounds, it is nonetheless the music itself that predominates in motion picture presentation.
