

Former Bombing Range Cleared For Public Use

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — A 27,000-acre World War II bombing and gunnery range near Moses Lake has been cleared of some 85,000 pounds of fragments and is now safe for civilian use, the Army Engineers reported.

The range, 34 miles southwest of Moses Lake, was leased from private owners. The land may now be used for any purpose although portions totaling 370 acres will still be out of bounds.

"These portions were subjected to heavy concentration of fire and it has not been possible to certify them for unqualified public use," said Col. F. S. Tandy, district engineer here.

AMBASSADORS, 1954 edition, will appear at the North Roseburg Church tonight in a concert of hymns, spirituals, and novelty numbers which they will present in conjunction with a brief message. The group is currently on tour of western cities.

New Ambassadors Appear At North Roseburg Church

The new Ambassadors Male Quartet, the 1954 edition of one of the nation's outstanding college quartets, will be featured guests at an evening of music at the North Roseburg Church, 2043 Vine St., tonight at 7:45 p. m.

The Ambassadors, all of whom are a part of the famous Pacific Bible College a cappella choir, which has had both radio and television broadcasts of local and national coverage, is one of California's most popular Gospel teams.

Ronald Kriese, baritone, is soloist. Alfonso Marsala, first tenor, and Arthur Carl, second tenor, sing duets; Bob Hempy, bass, is a challenging speaker.

In addition to their singing, they give slight-of-hand object lessons to illustrate religious experiences. They will conduct the entire service.

McKay Says Leave Power Surveys To Individuals

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The federal government should be asked to make power surveys "only as a last resort," says Secretary of the Interior McKay.

McKay told the Chamber of Commerce Monday that unless local interests work on the problem "you will always have power shortages."

"It is up to you to interest private firms and other private agencies to start these surveys," he said.

The secretary promised government help but said his department believes that "you, locally, should develop power," calling on the government "only as a last resort."

McKay, who is making his first official inspection of Alaska, flew to Valdez and Cordova Monday night. He was due back here Tuesday.

Only two umpires officiated in the World Series from 1903 to 1908. Then two more arbiters were added. Now six take the field for the post-season classic.

McKay Announces He Will Not Run Against Morse

SEATTLE — Secretary of the Interior McKay said today Saturday he will not try to unseat Sen. Wayne Morse when the Oregon Independent's term expires in 1956.

McKay, en route to Alaska, made the statement during an interview when questioned about reports he might run against Morse with whom he has been at loggerheads for a long time.

The secretary was Oregon governor when he was appointed to his Cabinet post by President Eisenhower. Morse left the Republican party during the presidential campaign of 1952 and has been sharply critical of the administration ever since.

"I just want to finish out my term in the Interior Department and go back home to Salem," McKay said.

He added that he did not know what his reaction would be if the White House should ask him to run against Morse.

"That's a question I won't attempt to answer until — and if such a situation arises," he said. "Frankly, I doubt very much that such a request ever will be made."

McKay said the administration's partnership policy for federal-local development of the nation's hydroelectric resources is designed to "get more kilowatts to the great Pacific Northwest as fast as possible."

"If we wait for the federal government to build dams, we'll be faced with a power shortage before the dams ever are started," he said. "The federal government just hasn't got the money now."

McKay said he would campaign strongly for re-election of Sen. Cordon (R-Ore) and predicted Cordon would defeat Democrat Richard L. Neuberger of Portland.

OCE Adds Three Study Programs To Curriculum

OREGON COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, Monmouth — Beginning with the fall term in September, Oregon College of Education is adding three additional programs of study to the elementary teacher education program in operation there for nearly seventy years.

The new programs include pre-professional curricula of two to three years in length, high school teacher preparation, and a liberal arts and science program culminating in the B.S. in General Studies.

The pre-professional program enables a student to complete two years of college work toward starting in professions such as medicine, law, dentistry, business administration, journalism, and similar fields. One year of university or college preparation is given in such specialized areas as engineering, agriculture, forestry, and pharmacy. Students may transfer to other state institutions in Oregon for the remainder of their specialized professional work in these fields.

The high school teacher preparation program enables the student to be certificated to teach in high school. He will major in one of three areas, Social Science, Humanities, or Science-Mathematics. He may take a minor in one of the other fields or in a specialized area. Thus, a student at OCE has the opportunity to prepare for teaching in kindergarten, elementary, junior high, high school, with added specialties in special education and in part-time librarianship.

The B.S. degree in General Studies is a four-year liberal arts and science program. It provides for the student a broad liberal arts and science education. It is excellent also for freshman students who are undecided as to the field of study in which they wish to specialize.

These new programs begin the academic year 1954-55 and the first degrees will be awarded at commencement in June, 1956. The Oregon College of Education is the only state-supported smaller college in western Oregon, and thus has a unique opportunity to serve students desiring to take advantage of broad college offerings in a small college situation.

DEATHS STILL LOW

Deaths so far this year: 190.

Deaths in same period last year: 237.

Deaths since campaign started Nov. 1, 1953: 274.

Deaths in same period a year ago: 371.

Glendale Visitor Tours Two Mills

By MRS. G. B. FOX

Fred Biggs from Southern California, is in Glendale visiting with his sister, Mrs. Myrtle Young, and family and Mrs. Joyce Mills and family. Bigg's stepson, Herbert Anderson, of Hermosa Beach, and his wife and three youngsters visited over the weekend. Young conducted Anderson through the Robert Dollar saw mill and the Multnomah Plywood Co. plant here on Monday. It was Anderson's first visit to either type of mill.

The Youngs and their guests took a trip down the Rogue River Sunday.

In Los Angeles
Charles Mill left July 12, to visit relatives in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Delter Redden and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roark and children spent last weekend fishing at Brookings. They report a fair catch.

The Olivet Presbyterian vacation church school in Glendale has concluded its second week. Attendance went as high as 120 the first week, and 12 faculty members have been working on the varied study and recreation program.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fisher and family have returned from Los Angeles to make their home in Azalea. He is the son of Art Fisher of Azalea.

Mr. and Mrs. William Croff and children, Jean and Ginger, spent last week at Crane Prairie Reservoir fishing and vacationing. They report good fishing.

Major Harold Cooley of Glendale and Stanford Nace of Fortune Branch are among those who flew down to Camp Ord for a two week National Guard encampment.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Smithpeter from Porterville, Calif., are visiting at the home of Lindel Smithpeters in Glendale.

Paul Newman Jr., of Azalea spent several days visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Newman, in California. On his return, he was accompanied by Mrs. Newman Sr., who will visit here for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Croff of Azalea held a Douglas County Pamona Grange picnic at their home on July 11. Approximately 60 persons attended the potluck dinner and meeting.
