Some Wildlife Refuges May Be Opened For Hunting

WASHINGTON — The Interior Department is looking into the possibility of doing away with some federal wildlife refuges and opening the fringes of others to hunting. The department also is reviewing the size and operating efficiency of the fleet of seagoing vessels and airplanes assigned to the Fish and Wildlife Service, and is moving to correct other unsatisfactory conditions within that agency. The steps are in line with recommendations of a special five-man team, appointed by Secretary of the Interior McKay, which made a six-week, 11,000-mile survey of Fish and Wildlife Service installations.

The team was composed of James R. Turnbull, Seattle, chairman; Ross L. Leffer, Pittsburgh, and John D. Pennekamp, Miami, and two career employees of the department, M. George Goodrick and John B. Bennett. The team recommended a considerable internal reorganization of the agency, both within the headquarters here and in the regional offices, in order to improve fish and wildlife management without adding personnel. Orme Lewis, assistant secretary, disclosed that he has ordered the director of the Fish and Wildlife Service to undertake the reorganization and to take steps necessary to put into effect the other recommendations of the survey team. These include:

1. Reappraisals of "controversial" wildlife refuges, especially those maintained for resident game species not in danger of extinction, and where the areas involved are considerably greater than needed for adequate conservation.
2. Giving consideration to opening suitable strips within certain refuge boundaries to controlled public shooting, "provided that this will not materially reduce the effectiveness as a waterfowl refuge."
3. Assignment of responsibility to appropriate regional offices for scheduling and use of airplanes and seagoing vessels since these "may prove to be a most serious extravagance."
4. A "more aggressive and comprehensive research program" to combat botulism, which has killed hundreds of thousands of ducks in the past few years.
5. Consolidation of market news service.

Farrell Makes Seattle Trip At His Own Expense

City Manager George Farrell started the Roseburg City Council at its meeting Monday night by announcing he would take no expense money this week despite the fact he was attending the Northwest City Managers conference in Washington in an official capacity. He said he would be attending to some personal business also, so he refused to take any expense money from the city coffers.

Army Announces Medal Of Honor For Lieutenant

WASHINGTON — The Army announced Saturday award of the Medal of Honor to 1st Lt. Benjamin F. Wilson for "sustained valor and intrepid actions."

The 33-year-old soldier from Vashon, Wash., was a master sergeant on June 5, 1951, when his platoon attacked North Korean Red positions in fortifications near Hwach'on-Myon. Wounded twice, he fought on with rifle, grenades and finally a shovel. Wilson and the men with him killed at least 45 Reds in bitter, hand-to-hand fighting.

Psychologist Tells How To Banish H-Bomb Fear

LOS ANGELES — A UCLA psychologist suggests family preparation against any "H-bomb day." Experience has shown that actively reduces fear and anxiety, Dr. David Boder says. He has studied the impact of disaster on large populations. Accordingly, he suggested:

- Plan specific duties for each member of the family. Dad can load the car, for example, while Mother looks after the food. Older brothers and sisters can care for the younger children.
- Decide in advance on a familiar rendezvous in case family members are separated. Don't stall or resist evacuation. Even if the family isn't hurt by a blast, food and water may be contaminated.
- Have identification tags for all the family bearing name and blood type. Invest in E Bonds, cashable even if lost or destroyed, especially with a list of serial numbers.

Dulles Cancels News Conference For Today

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dulles canceled his news conference today to keep in close touch with Indochina truce developments at Geneva. Dulles, who usually meets with newsmen on Tuesdays when he is in Washington, was reported to be in frequent telephone and cable contact with Walter Bedell Smith, head of the U. S. delegation at the Far Eastern conference.

Papers Denied Dope Addicts

WASHINGTON — The Coast Guard said Saturday it will promptly launch "vigorous enforcement" of a new law denying seaman's papers to dope addicts and sellers. President Eisenhower signed the measure this week. For the first time it empowers the Coast Guard to act against merchant seamen convicted of narcotics violations on shore. Without that authority "notorious narcotic felons and addicts" could continue sailing on U.S. vessels to foreign ports where drugs were easy to get, the Coast Guard said.
