Drum And Bugle Corps Will Stage Public Drill

The final appearance of the Knights of Pythias' Girls Drum and Bugle Corps for this season will be in front of the Indian Theatre Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. with the opening of the local engagement of "The Caine Mutiny."

Fresh from their latest triumph in Portland at the Shrine All-Star game last weekend, the girls, under the leadership of Billy Black, will present one of their famed precision drills just before the boxoffice opens. Immediately afterward the entire group will be guests of the theatre as a "mighty small reward," as the management of the theatre put it, "for the immense amount of publicity and good will this fine group has brought to Roseburg."

Minks are cousins of the weasel.
