Proposal For New Tax Base Discussed At Meet

for three firemen and four policemen. The totals now are 14 and 17. During the same period, assessed valuations have jumped about 250 per cent.

Croft emphasized that "we are not asking for additional money this year." He reminded his audience, about 35 Chamber members, that the figures on the ballot measure don't mean the city is asking for that amount.

He said that a new tax base will save money because special elections can be eliminated (three elections last spring cost about $800). The measure would probably boost property taxes about $1.50 per $1,000 assessed valuation for 1956-57 if current growth continues evenly.

Saying "we can then live within the 6 per cent tax limitation for years to come," Croft assured his audience the city "is not going backward. We are going ahead."

Farrell also emphasized that an establishment of a new tax base "does not mean we will spend that amount ($256,520) each year." The city budget would be kept under that if possible.

As to elimination of costly elections, he reminded that the city would still have public hearings on the budget, following approval by the budget committee and City Council.

The officials, introduced at the meeting by Chamber President Wayne Crooch, will appear at other local meetings prior to the election.

Tankersley's Condition Reported As Critical

The condition of former Douglas County resident David Tankersley is reported as critical at Sacred Heart Hospital in Eugene, according to his parents.

Tankersley, a North Bend policeman, was transferred to Eugene from North Bend Saturday. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ted Tankersley of Tenmile, saw him Monday.

Officer Tankersley was injured recently at North Bend when he fell and hit his head as he and another officer attempted to place and arrest a man in a police car. Tankersley was reportedly kicked in the legs, causing him to fall.

With the injured man in Eugene are his wife, June, and his brother, Wilbur, on special leave from the Army.

RUBINOFF WITH TREASURE Stradivarius Violin Used By Rubinoff In Concerts Insured For $100,000

When Rubinoff appears in Roseburg Wednesday night in a program of popular concert music, he will play on one of the most precious instruments in the world, the famed Romanoff-Stradivarius violin insured for $100,000.

The violin is famous for its silken, lustrous tone, its full range and almost unbelievable depth, the artist says. Made in 1781, by the master of all violin makers, Antonio Stradivari, this particular "strad" eventually found its way into the hands of the Romanoffs, one-time rulers of Russia. It still bears the jeweled crest of that family. During the revolution it was smuggled out of Russia and later purchased by Rubinoff.

Sensitive to heat, humidity, altitude and the risks that beset any treasure of such value, the Stradivarius is guarded and handled with deference and extreme care at all times.

About 50 genuine Stradivarius violins are recorded, 163 of which are now owned in the United States. Each is worth $10,000 to $100,000.

Rubinoff points out that various "copies" have been produced in Italy, Germany and Japan in past label bearing the famous name, label bearing the famous name, but they are worth only from $5 to $50 apiece.

The Rubinoff concert will be held at the new Roseburg High School gymnasium, beginning at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday. Tickets are on sale at Harmony Shop, Ott & Ricketts Music Store, Hotel Umpqua, Miller's Record Shop and the Record Music Shop.

Rubinoff's concert will include solos of "Clair de Lune," "Warsaw Concerto," Chopin's "Polonaise" and "Rhapsody in Blue."

Shoemaker Interested Visitor At Diamond Lake

management, he was appointed state game director and during his 10 years in that office started many innovations in management procedure. He was delegated by the states of Washington and Oregon jointly to go to the national capital to work on several special missions. While in Washington, D.C., he was made secretary of a special Senate committee on Conservation of Wildlife Resources. The appointment was made upon the recommendation of the late Sen. Charles McNary.

In association with Cartoonist "Ding" Darling, Shoemaker was an organizer of the National Wildlife Federation in 1936 and became its manager. He served in that capacity until Jan. 1, 1953.

He is currently conservation consultant for the National Wildlife Federation and general counsel for the International Association of Fish Game and Conservation Commissioners.

Following inspection of the project at Diamond Lake, he will visit Klamath and Tule Lakes and then will return to Roseburg to spend a few days.

Fog Blanket General From Roseburg North

PORTLAND (AP) — Fog closed the Portland airport Tuesday morning. It was a general blanket west of the Cascades in Oregon and Washington as far south as Roseburg.

Only one ship was coming up the Columbia and it moved on slow bell with scant visibility.

The Weather Bureau said that Wednesday morning, Western Oregon should have clouds instead of fog, with the sun breaking through in the afternoon.

Liability Of Roseburg Evidenced On Every Hand

Another interesting break-down of Roseburg's economy, which shows favorably towards its permanency, stability and soundness, is the fact that the total effective buying income of the residents within the city limits, during the year 1953, was $17,246,000 while the retail sales, during that same year, brought in a return of over $37-million dollars. In other words, if every dollar of the effective buying income of the residents of this city, during last year, was spent with local firms, it would mean that some $19,756,000 of these sales came from sources outside the corporate limits of the city.

While it might be "wishful thinking" to surmise that every dollar of the effective buying income of the residents of Roseburg was spent with local merchants research does show, definitely, a trend on the part of the residents of Roseburg to recognize the high class stores that are maintained here, and the importance to a stabilized economy of keeping as much of the effective buying income in the local region, as it is possible to do. In other words buying consumer goods from local firms.

The commercial firms of Roseburg have stocked their shelves with every type of consumer goods that could possibly be needed, or desired, in the daily living of local people. The same diversity and quality exists in these stores as is to be found in any of the metropolitan centers of the West Coast or the nation. Therefore, there is no logical reason why a balanced and stable economy, such as indicated above, should not exist here, permanently.

County Judge Hill At O & C Meeting

County Judge Carl C. Hill was in Portland today to attend a discussion of lands exchange under the Cordon-Ellsworth bill dealing with O&C timber.

Officers of the Assn. of O & C Counties, the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management were also in attendance. Judge Hill heads the O & C organization.

One of the main topics for discussion was the matter of road funds appropriated by Congress for BLM access roads.

The lands exchange provided in the new bill must be completed within two years. The idea is for an exchange between the federal agencies so that timber will be more accessible in large blocks, rather than have timber of each agency widely scattered.

The USFS and BLM have made some progress in plans for exchange, today, they were to report on those plans and ask suggestions from the counties.

Choral Society Holds First Practice Monday

The Roseburg Choral Society staged its first practice Monday night at the Central Junior High School.

The singers began workouts for the first concert, the Christmas season rendition of the "Messiah" under the direction of Clarence Trued. Accompanist was Mrs. Bernard Saar.

The next practice is scheduled Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Central Junior High School music room. Any singer is invited to take part in the practices, particularly church choir singers.

Parent-Teacher Workshop Set For Wednesday

September means back to schools for parents and teachers, too.

About 150 people from all parts of the county, representing 30 Assns. Registration starts at 9:30 a.m. in the Episcopal Parish Hall. The meetings will last until 2:15 p.m. with time out for lunch at 12:30.

Wednesday, a training workshop has been called by the Douglas County Council of Parent-Teacher in Roseburg. The school of instruction will get under way at 10 a.m. county units, are expected to attend.

Mrs. Ray Karp, Myrtle Creek, president of the county council and director of the workshop, cites several purposes for the session. She reports the schools are planning to give officers and members of every PTA a chance to know what it means to be a member of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Also, they will deal with the legitimate fields of PTA interest and activity, with fund raising and school legislation.

Council officers and chairmen will act as consultants at the workshop, Mrs. Karp said. The conferences and "buzz" sessions will be conducted by council chairman for each council unit.

Meanwhile, reservations are still being taken for the luncheon at the parish hall at 12:30. Mrs. Jack Cummins, Roseburg, is in charge of arrangements. She has asked anyone wanting reservations to call her at 3-5355.
