Justice Brand Resigns Board Of Reed College

PORTLAND (AP)—State Supreme Court Justice James T. Brand disclosed Wednesday he had resigned from the Reed College board of trustees just after Duncan S. Ballantine quit as president last month.

Brand, a board member 12 years, made public a letter saying he resigned because of the faculty's dominance and attitude toward Communism and toward the president's office.

"I cannot," he wrote, "... continue my connection with the college, delightful as it has been, so long as the group which appears to dominate the school continues to show itself so enamored of the dogma of academic freedom that it fails to appreciate the fact that all freedom is in peril as a result of the Communist conspiracy."

Moore, the judge said, had the right to do this and so, perhaps, did the faculty council have a right to come to his defense.

day, then to speak to the University of Oregon student body. He has a night talk in Roseburg and will wind up his campaign tour in Medford Friday.

Wednesday night Democratic Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington fired a blast at McKay for giving Cordon credit for obtaining federal money for McNary, Chief Joseph and The Dalles dams.

He said Democrats "tremendously object to this blatant effort to grab credit for the good things done for the people of the Northwest by past Democratic administrations."

Magnuson added that money for the three dams "was requested by Democratic officials and appropriated by Democratic Congresses. They are part of the Democratic program to give the cheapest power to the greatest number of people in the Columbia basin."

terms of the mining laws had been met.

A few days ago a columnist, Drew Pearson, attacked the issuance and Interior Secretary McKay in a lengthy statement defending it. Morse, speaking at Coos Bay, said he would demand a Senatorial investigation.

Ellsworth said at Bandon Wednesday night he doubted anything would be heard about the investigation after the election. But, he said, he'd like to have it pushed and to have it include looking into why letters pertinent to the claim had vanished from the Interior Department files.

Porter said at Medford that he had just come from looking over the mining claims and found that although Ellsworth had said Al Serena would need all the timber on its claims in work at the mines, there has been recent timber cutting—and selling—and the mine hasn't been worked since 1942.

Referring to the earlier decision against granting patents, Porter said, "once the Republicans were in power it didn't take long to reverse the decision and give this valuable timber to a private corporation for $5 an acre."

Two Killed, Four Hurt As Californians Crash

SALEM (AP)—Two California cars met head on 11 miles south of here shortly after noon Wednesday, killing a San Francisco couple. Three of four in the other car were hurt.

State police quoted a witness as saying O'Quinn apparently lost control of his vehicle and it severed partly off the highway and then back on. Howell said the cars met with great force and the O'Quinn died in the wreckage.

Canyon Ruling Postponed Until After Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Power Commission legal staff's recommendation in the controversial Hells Canyon case will not be an issue in the fall political campaign.

FPC examiner William J. Costello ruled out this possibility Wednesday in granting the request of staff counsel John C. Mason for a 30-day extension of the deadline for filing first briefs in the legal dispute over the Hells Canyon dam site in the Snake River.

The deadline was to have been Oct. 11 but Costello changed it to Nov. 10, eight days after the elections.

Declaring vacations and other FPC work had delayed the work of preparing the briefs, Mason had asked for more time to outline the staff's stand on whether the Idaho Power Co. should be permitted to construct three dams near the site proposed for a single federal dam.

Costello did not mention the issue as he believed here members of the commission, who will make a final decision in the case, would prefer to have the staff position announced after the election and not before. The issue already is a hot one in the Pacific Northwest and while the commission and its staff may reach different conclusions, disclosure of the staff stand might add fuel to the dispute.

Secretary of the Interior McKay's withdrawal of opposition to the Idaho Power application brought attacks from Democratic candidates and public power spokesmen who have charged it is evidence of a Republican "give-away" of natural resources.

Costello, in approving the Mason motion, said the state of Washington, which also has intervened in the case, has advised him it too, could use more time in preparing its brief.

3-Year Sentence Given Youth For Burglary

building. He said he didn't know anything was taken until the articles were brought to the car, parked near the scene. As his share of the loot, he got "a couple quarts of oil." Items taken included a jack, some boots, cans of oil and a grease gun.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Warren A. Weston said the state contended that Carleton "aided and abetted" in the crime, although the burglary may have been a spur-of-the-moment affair and actually carried out by the younger boys.

Carleton said he had lived in the Myrtle Creek area only about five months. He admitted a long record of offenses in California for which he was sent to reformatory. Included were auto theft, two burglaries and parole violation. At the time of his arrest by Myrtle Creek police and a deputy sheriff, Carleton was carrying a sawed-off .22 rifle in his car. He received a short jail term when he pleaded guilty in Myrtle Creek municipal court to carrying a concealed weapon.

Judge Wimberly fully explained the rights of the defendant and gave the boy time to deliberate before making a plea. It was obvious the youth felt he would get a lighter sentence.

Another 18-year-old allegedly in on the same burglary, Robert Keith Reymann, is still in the county jail awaiting disposition of his case.

One of the younger boys involved has been sent to MacLaren School at Woodburn. He has a long record of offenses, and was on probation prior to the burglary.

The other youngster was given another chance to stay on the straight and narrow. But, Judge Carl C. Hill, who presides over juvenile court, warns that "those who show a consistent record of law breaking will go to Woodburn." Although he feels much of the blame falls with parents, Judge Hill said he feels more drastic action may be necessary in future cases.

Madison Gets Divorce; Tired Of 'Range' Duty

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Guy Madison, the cowboy actor, spent too much time home on the range, he complained in winning a divorce from actress Gail Russell.

Madison testified it was often necessary for him to cook meals and clean the house because his wife "had no interest in keeping up the home, wouldn't allow servants and showed no interest in my work."

The 32-year-old actor won an interlocutory decree on a cross-complaint as Miss Russell, 29, dropped her suit. Her attorney said she was too emotionally upset to appear in court. The couple married in 1949 and separated last year.

Madison agreed to pay his wife $12,000 cash plus minimum alimony of $2,400 a year for the next 10 years, or until she remarries.

The committee said copies of this memorandum—containing what it termed "a sample listing of Nixon votes against the welfare of farmers, working people, and small business operators"—are being sent to Democratic leaders along the West Coast as part of its current campaign trail.

Independent Sen. Morse of Oregon, speaking in Los Angeles, listed what he called the "war-mongering" of Nixon and Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP Senate leader, on his roster of 1954 campaign issues.

"This is the Communist plan and it is still their plan, which you can read in your papers this morning."

Eden said he expected the nine nation conference decision reached in London last week on the rearming of Western Germany to be ratified by the various parliaments because the consequences of rejection are "so fearful to contemplate."

There had been some fears in Bonn that one of the coalition parties—the Free Democrats—might favor the new Molotov bid.

Strong Winds Fan Fires, Knock Out Power Lines

Wind gusts reaching as high as 44 miles per hour Wednesday afternoon disrupted several operations in Central Douglas County.

The winds sent a few slash fires out of control and threatened others, according to Douglas Forest Protective Assn. Dispatcher Wayne Miller. They caused considerable trouble for the Copco service department.

Street lights in west Roseburg were put out of order early Wednesday evening. Copco crew men worked to restore power today and said they believed it would be flowing by evening. They reported a little trouble in the Winston section and slight power failures in the eastern and western sectors of Roseburg.

Much of the trouble came when the wind swung power lines together, causing them to burn. One residential section was temporarily without light in West Roseburg, service personnel said.

DFPA men were kept busy bringing the slash fires under control. Dispatcher Miller said. A few on private logging operations were controlled by loggers, he said. No damage resulted.

Residents also kept the phones hot at DFPA headquarters as they reported a "good-sized fire burning in the Coast Range in the Landers Area." The slash fire burned over 400 acres of slash on lumber company property. It was under control at all times, Miller said.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said the wind was highest between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. and averaged 15 to 25 miles per hour with the highest gusts registering 44 mph. The winds, unusual for the area, accompanied a weak cold front which moved in from the Pacific Ocean. By Thursday morning, the cold front had reached the Ren, Nev. area.
