V. T. Jackson Was Heaviest Vote Getter In Douglas Co.

One of the heaviest vote getters in Douglas County in the recent election campaign was V. T. Jackson, Democratic candidate for state representative.

His total vote of 10,169 was slightly lower than that cast for candidates for other positions. But he proved his domination by winning approval to the State House of Representatives in every one of the 82 precincts.

He was the biggest vote getter in 60 of the 82 precincts, was tied for most votes in one precinct and ran second in the other 20. Two seats were at stake. At the other extreme, Ken Morgan won the position in only one precinct.

Almost as complete was domination by two county men running for other offices. Frank Ashley, another Democrat, chalked up 10,363 votes to oust incumbent Lynn Beckley. He won 73 of the 82 precincts. One tie vote was cast. In the district judge's race, Warren Woodruff, a Republican, racked up 9,442 votes to beat out Thomas Hartfiel. In doing it, he won in 74 precincts.

On the national level, Sen. Guy Cordon dominated the race in number of precincts in about the same proportion as the number of votes in the county. He won 9,399 votes to Richarld L. Neuberger's 8,067, and was leading vote getter in 47 precincts.

An interesting sidelight is the way Cordon's winning precincts were clustered. He dominated the central part of the county but faltered in the southern and coast parts of the county. Neuberger's strongest areas in the county were on the coast and in the southern areas. The number of precincts were slightly in favor of Cordon in the north central part of the county.

Harris Ellsworth won most of the precincts in the county as expected, but his Democratic opponent, Charles O. Porter, ran stronger than expected. Ellsworth won 55 precincts, Porter 25, and two were ties. Ellsworth also found most of his strength in the center of the county.

The greatest imbalance among the eight measures in number of precincts was found on the Daylight savings time issue. Five, all in Roseburg, voted in favor of the issue, 76 other precincts voted it down, and one cast equal votes for and against.

NEW CATHOLIC SCHOOL

EUGENE (AP) — A $240,000 funds campaign is underway here to finance construction of two new Catholic grade schools and an eight-classroom elementary addition to St. Francis High School.

The Rev. Edmund J. Murnane, pastor of St. Mary's Parish, said the new schools are needed to relieve over crowding in the present Catholic schools.

Drain Study Club Asks Support For Museum

The Drain Study Club has called for support in the establishment of an historical museum in the northern part of Douglas County, according to the Drain Enterprise.

Support would have to be area-wide, the club decided in a discussion of the project. It was pointed out that the area has had considerable significance in Oregon hisotry; that descendants of early settlers still live in large numbers in the north end of the county; and that such an undertaking eventually would prove attractive to tourists.

A committee was appointed to contact other organizations.
