Census Takers Score 100 In Traffic Safety

CORVALLIS — The census of agriculture in Western Oregon has been completed. Officials say a traffic safety record may have been set while taking it.

Although 270 workers drove over a quarter million miles in the past three months, not one was involved in a traffic accident, Don Mote, supervisor, said. The enumerators traveled every road in the western 38 counties of the state to interview 45,000 farmers in making the census, Mote said.

Only Mote and a secretary remain on the payroll to close the office here.
