

Flying Boxcars Continue Flights To Alaska Zones

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — Giant Flying Boxcars were roaring into Edmonton steadily Wednesday as movement continued of 3,000 United States paratroopers to Alaska for battle maneuvers in Exercise Snowbird.

The temperature when they left their base in Kentucky was 49 degrees above. It was 12 below when some arrived in Edmonton. The planes carrying them are unheated.

And weather statistics show that they may expect temperatures

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

SALEM (AP) — The Salem Linen Thread Co., employing 50 persons, announced Wednesday it is going out of business.

It is the second linen firm to close up in the past few months. The Salem Linen Mills, which hired 150 employees, transferred its operations to Oakland, Calif., a few weeks ago.

range as low as 50 degrees below zero.

The troops, attached to the 503rd Air Borne Regimental Combat Team based at Ft. Campbell, Ky., are prepared for the cold. They are wearing full jump kit. The month-long Army-Air Force maneuver is designed to test men and equipment under intense cold conditions.

Each plane of the 100 involved in the movement carries 36 paratroopers with full equipment and five crew members.

The last plane is expected to leave Stewart Base in Tennessee about Wednesday midnight and the 4,300-mile flight to Elmendorf Field at Anchorage, Alaska, should be completed about Friday noon.

The planes are arriving in Edmonton at 30-minute intervals with a lapse of one hour between each unit of 10. By Tuesday night more than half had arrived in the Alberta capital where there is a 12-hour stopover for refueling and checks.

The last plane should arrive in Edmonton Thursday morning and take off on the 1,000-mile hop to Whitehorse, Y. T., by Thursday evening.

Whitehorse is the last scheduled stop before arrival at Anchorage. In addition to Edmonton, the other stopover is at Rapid City, S.D.
