Roseburg Area Safety Council May Be Formed

Representatives of the State Board of Health and the County Health Dept. Wednesday night will seek the organization of a safety council for the Roseburg area in a meeting in the circuit courtroom in the courthouse.

If formed, it would be the fourth formed in the state. Others are in Josephine County, Medford and Redmond.

Irv Reierson and LaVerne Miller, county health officers, said the step is being taken because of a high death rate from accidents, especially in the home, in Oregon.

Seventy letters have been sent out to various organizations, including service clubs, law enforcement agencies, business firms and others, they said. They said an attempt will be made to work up a charter after election of a chairman Wednesday night.

Frances Reierson, health education director for the State Board of Health and brother of the local man, will speak on organization of such a council.

The state board now has Kellogg money available from the Battle Creek, Mich., food manufacturing firm for purchase of educational materials on home safety. But safety in other areas of human activity are without funds.

Each participating organization would be expected to take some educational materials and clerical phase of safety as a project. The County Health Dept. would furnish help.

The council, it is planned, would work with governmental bodies and law enforcement agencies in its programming.

County Appraiser Will Take Special Course

Willmont E. Vermillion, an appraiser attached to the staff of the Douglas County assessor, has been granted a two-week leave of absence to attend a special course at the University of Oregon, according to Assessor Morris C. Bowker.

The course will cover appraisal of urban and real property. It is sponsored jointly by the U. of O. school of business administration, the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and Oregon real estate boards.

Vermillion has been in the assessor's office for the past year after his discharge from naval service. He was county assessor in Baker County prior to his entry into active duty.

Nothing so strikes terror in the heart of an individual as does the word cancer. There is every reason why it should, because of its insidious onset and its inexorable progress once it takes hold of its host.

The term cancer implies a growth of tissue which is not normal. It therefore includes all tumors, all growths, whether they are of the stationary type or of a spreading nature.

One may obtain a clearer picture of the cellular structure of a cancer by comparing it with normal tissue. All tissues have a definite architectural structure. That is, skin is laid down in a very definite manner normally, as are muscle, bone, nerves, blood vessels, and glands.

Cancerous growth, however, is a wild growth. It does not obey any special laws and does not grow in any special pattern. It invades the normal tissues, robbing them of their sustenance, and when invading vital structures, it destroys the function of these organs with fatal termination as a rule.

The word "tumor" originally meant a swelling. As commonly used, it means a new growth or enlargement of a part, which is not directly caused by injury or inflammation. Tumors are new formations in tissues. They tend to grow and extend locally and reproduce their own likeness in dif-

Parents Won't Permit Operation On 2-Year-Old

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — The parents of a 2-year-old girl have declined to authorize an operation which two physicians said Friday is the only hope of saving her life.

One physician, who asked that his name not be used, said the girl already is completely blind in one eye from a head tumor.

The doctors described the child, Phyllis Baker, as a "good surgical risk."

But her mother, Mrs. R. O. Baker, said: "We've decided to trust God. He'll heal her if He wants to," she said, adding that she is placing her confidence in two ministers "and a Christian lady."

One of the ministers, the Rev. Raymond Osborn of the Springfield Revival Center, said he had not influenced the family in its decision. "We pray for the sick," he said "but we don't take any stand against the doctors."

The Rev. Mr. Osborn said the Bakers are not members of his church but had attended services there.

Dan J. Cardwell, Lane County juvenile counselor, said he and the district attorney are studying the law to determine whether any legal action can be taken.

"We might feel different if Phyllis were suffering from this," Mrs. Baker said. "But she isn't in a bit of pain. She feels perfectly fine."

District 4 Teachers Training Meet Monday

District 4 teachers will spend a day in the third of their four-year in-service training sessions Monday at the Roseburg High School.

Meetings will begin at 8:30 a.m. and last throughout the day in a series of workshops, panels, including an address by Dr. Elmo Stevenson, president of the Southern Oregon College, entitled, "Public Relations Function of the Classroom Teacher."

The panel discussion will be on the subject of opportunities for good reading and will consist of panel members Miss Muriel Mitchell, Roseburg city librarian; Frank Scioscia, J. K. Gill Co.; Mrs. Marilyn Woodrich, lay citizen and former librarian, and Dr. Stevenson.

Schools will be dismissed for the day, Asst. Supt. Marvin Smith said.

Preliminary Drawings Of School Sent Back

Preliminary drawings of facilities proposed for the kitchen, shower room and dressing room at the new Hucrest School have been sent back to the architects for revision.

District 4 school board members meeting Friday night to examine the drawings more fully, decided they were not adequate.

They asked the Portland firm of Freeman Hayslip, Tuft & Hewlett to make the changes, reports school board chairman Mrs. C. E. Roberts.

In other action the board members requested minor changes in arrangements plans of the office at Joseph Lane Junior High School.

The board will meet again Monday noon to discuss administrative salaries.

Sutherland and Oakland Eye Dogs Running Loose

Both Sutherland and Oakland have decided to keep dogs from running at large.

At Oakland, the City Council has decided on strict enforcement of an ordinance saying no dogs shall run loose. All dogs when off their owners' premises must be on a leash, according to correspondent Edith Dunn.

At Sutherland, City Attorney Nelson Grubb has been requested to frame a proposed ordinance for keeping dogs in check during the summer and spring months.

Four Seminars Conducted Today By Educators

Four seminars today took up most of a day-long Southern Oregon Business Education Conference at the Roseburg High School. Teachers from six southern Oregon counties attended.

The conference started at 9:30 with registration and a message of greeting from Roseburg Principal Harry Jacoby. The first seminar, on bookkeeping, started at 10 under the chairmanship of Ralph Snyder of Roseburg High. Consultant was Prof. Levern Johnson of the University of Oregon.

An hour later, Walter Nelson of Grants Pass took over as chairman of the typewriting seminar. His consultant was Dr. Harold Palmer, supervisor of business education of the Eugene Public Schools.

After a luncheon, a business meeting launched planning for next year's regional meeting. At 1:30, Chairman Clara Jorvick of Reedsport Union High opened the shorthand and office practice seminar. Consultant was Carl Salser of the Portland public schools.

The final seminar, general business education, was directed by John Searle of Roseburg High. His consultant was Dr. Theodore Yerman of Oregon State College.

Umpqua Dairy Winner Of Gold Certificate

A gold certificate for fluid milk products has been awarded to Umpqua Dairy Products Co., Roseburg at the 4th annual convention of the Oregon Dairy Industries.

The award was for half and half, cream and whipping cream. It was presented to Dave Tomashek, foreman of the milk room. Dairy plants departments throughout Oregon entered the judging contests at the Corvallis convention.

Among the divisions were ice cream, cheddar cheese, milk, cream, butter, and fluid milk products.

School Aid Bill Comes In For Much Criticism

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The executive secretary of the National Education Assn. criticized President Eisenhower's aid-to-education program Saturday as likely to lead to federal control of public schools.

In a speech prepared for a convention of high school principals here, William G. Carr said that loans proposed under one section of the Eisenhower plan "would be attended by far more federal controls than are possible under any of the direct grants-in-aid bills which have been recommended by previous committees of the Congress."

The President's proposals are embodied in a bill by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) which is now being considered in hearings of the Senate Labor Committee. The bill calls for federal purchase of bonds from financially weak school districts, loans to "state school building authorities" and outright grants to state school districts.

Provisions of the Smith bill have already drawn criticism from 31 state education officials whose comments were placed in the hearing record Friday. They included arguments against the bill by Mrs. Pearl A. Wanamaker, Washington State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

With regard to the first part of the Smith bill, Carr said: "The U.S. commissioner of education, at his discretion include such other covenants, conditions or provisions as he may deem necessary to assure payment."

The third part of the bill, he said, requires the commissioner to "tell the states how to determine the eligibility of local school boards."

Relatively Small Atomic Blast Set Off Over Desert

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A relatively small blast from a high-flying B36 bomber Friday launched the long-delayed 1955 atomic test series on the Nevada desert.

The shot, originally set for 7:30 a.m., but not detonated until noon, was seen here only as a weak flash in the bright sky. There was no noticeable shock effect here, in contrast with shock waves in previous series which have broken windows.

The plane drop was late because the delivery plane was delayed in takeoff. Later, clouds over the target forced the plane to make three bombing runs.

About 35 major experiments were connected with the sequence timer which detonated the blast, the AEC said. These were for developmental and for weapons and civil effects purposes.

Sutherland Census Held Back For New Legislation

Plans for conducting a census in Sutherland are being held back pending the outcome of a legislative bill which would create a state census board.

The bill would authorize the state to run an annual census for Oregon cities. Counting now can be authorized by the Secretary of State on application of a city. Purpose of such applications are for additional revenues from state liquor and gasoline tax refunds, which are based on population.

City Manager Hugh McKinley said such a count would cost the city about $1,000.

of Washington. Fish was cited for failure to yield right of way.

According to the accident report, Fish was making a left turn into the Dairy Queen as Thompson was going south on Stephens. Damage to Fish's car was placed at $180. Damage to McNeill's car was minor. Both drivers told police another car pulled out from the Dairy Queen, causing Fish to stop in the lane of traffic to keep from hitting him.

State police reported a two-car collision on Highway 99, south of Roseburg Saturday morning. They said a car operated by Stanley Arthur Ransom, U. S. Navy, San Francisco, collided with one operated by Maurice Lee Forbes, Rt. 4, Roseburg. The cars met in the middle of the highway just north of the Shamrock Motel. No citations were issued. Police reported damage to the left side of Ransom's car. Both men complained of minor injuries.

Church Women To Join World Day Of Prayer

The Roseburg Council of Church Women will join in a worldwide movement Feb. 25, for a World Day of Prayer, at St. George's Episcopal Church at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Thelma Clune, president of the council, said today that the program will be used on an international basis, and at least eight Roseburg churches will take part in the service. The service is divided into five segments, all of which center around the principal theme, "Abide In Me." Each segment will be conducted by a different church, with women of the church acting as leaders in the audience response service.

Mrs. Esther Gilliland is chairman of the day's prayer service, which, she says, will run about an hour in length. The service is scheduled to begin at the international date-line and continue in around-the-world places and will reach such remote areas as the Tonga Islands and the St. Lawrence Islands.

Benefits received from the World Day of Prayer offerings have helped establish 11 colleges in the Orient and Africa and has aided indigent families and provided in-service training for ministers for out-of-the-way places.

Although the service is scheduled for an hour when most are working, Mrs. Gilliland stresses the council's invitation to business men who can visit the church while the service is in progress.

Failure Of Older Folks On Conservation Pointed

great West Coast duck and goose flyway over the Klamath Basin, she said last year 44,997 hunters invaded the area. They expended 50 3/10 tons of led in bringing down about 85,000 ducks and geese.

Mrs. Price examined the effects of the workshop training. She said it was paying off with the children she teaches in Elkton because their field trips, oral reports and reference work were "fun" to them. That the youngsters take it seriously is reflected by one who sent a folder of conservation material to New Zealand warning the natives to conserve their resources.

Judge Hill summed up by saying: "The future of conservation is dependent on the training we give our children."

Master of Ceremonies Bruce Yeager urged the sportsmen and conservationists to promote the program by getting more teachers to attend the workshop. He said the program would fail if more teachers did not enter it.

The evening was concluded by a report on the midwinter Oregon Wildlife Federation meeting recently at Corvallis.
