

Kidnap Attempt Penalty Awaited

FREEHOLD, N.J.—Anthony Staikos, 31, ex-time cook, faces a possible maximum sentence of 30 years in prison for the attempted kidnaping of a Yonkers, N.Y., high school boy.

Monmouth County Judge John C. Giordano accepted Staikos' plea of no defense to the charge and set March 4 for sentencing.

Staikos originally was charged with kidnaping 16-year-old Joe Robert Katz a month ago.

In New Jersey kidnaping involving ransom may carry a death penalty.

Katz accepted a ride from Staikos in New York after school Jan. 7.

Police charged Staikos drove to Matawan and kept the boy a prisoner in the cellar of his home, forcing him to write two notes to his parents demanding $100,000 ransom. The boy escaped and the notes were torn up.

Donations Raise Building Funds At Willamette U.

PORTLAND—Another $142,000 raised at large will complete the $1,050,000 construction program at Willamette University.

Truman W. Collins, chairman of the development committee, told the school's board of trustees here that actually $284,000 is needed, but two donors will put up half the money, if the other half can be raised at large.

Already these two donors have put up $407,000 to match other pledges for the building fund.

Dr. G. Herbert Smith, Willamette president, said that when the building program is completed, the school's enrollment can go up from approximately 1,000 to 1,250.

Smith also announced that 10 new scholarships of $300 will be available next season for freshmen. They will come from the Mary L. Collins scholarship fund, which already provides scholarships for four men and four women in their junior and senior years, as well as one graduate scholarship.

Candidates for the freshmen scholarship will undergo competitive examinations on the campus, April 18.

The following appointments were approved, effective in September: Dr. Marian Morange as head of the department of Romance Languages; Dr. Robert L. Furbrick as head of the physics department; Dr. Paul Trueblood as head of the English department.
