

New Developments Reported In West Coast Airlines' Certificate Renewal Case

WASHINGTON — New developments in West Coast Airlines' certificate renewal case must be studied before a hearing date can be set, a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner said today.

West Coast amended its application this week, asking approval of route changes and expansion of its service to include Utah. Present routes are in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

Petitions to intervene also were received from chambers of commerce in Wenatchee and Port Angeles, Wash., and Southwest Airways and United Air Lines made requests of the CAB which may be consolidated with the West Coast case.

Paul Pfeiffer, CAB examiner, said after a pre-hearing conference Tuesday, he first will determine the scope of the proceeding and issue a consolidation order before fixing the date of the hearing.

West Coast, in its revised application, seeks:

1. Redesignation of present non-stop authority between Lewiston-Clarkston and Boise, Idaho, as an intermediate stop on a seasonal basis, June 15 to Sept. 15, with authority to overfly McCall, Idaho, on other than one round trip a day.
2. Addition of Bend-Redmond, Ore., to West Coast's Klamath Falls-Portland route, and redesignation of the route to include as intermediate points Bend-Redmond-Medford, Roseburg, North Bend-Coos Bay, Eugene, and Albany-Corvallis.
3. A regular rather than temporary route between Spokane and Pasco-Kennewick-Richland.
4. Extension of a route from Idaho Falls to Salt Lake City by way of Logan and Ogden, Utah, and suspension of Western Air Lines at Ogden and Logan.
5. Wenatchee and Port Angeles chambers of commerce petitioned the CAB for permission to intervene in the hearing. Both cities said they wanted continued service to West Coast.
6. Southwest Airways asked the CAB to include in the West Coast hearing its own request for a route extension from Redding, Calif., to Klamath Falls, and for suspension of West Coast at Klamath Falls.
7. United Air Lines has asked, too, that its request to suspend service to Walla Walla, Bend-Redmond and Klamath Falls be included.

YOUR BODY

ROSEBURG, OREGON — These health articles are written and paid for by Dr. B. A. SMITH, Chiropractic and Naturopathic Physician, 1500 Garden Valley Road, in the interest of public health and to help you understand the body function. Look for these informative articles every Saturday.

Gangrene is due to massive death of tissue as a result of the loss of blood supply to the part. One cause of such a loss of blood supply may be due to injury to the blood vessels whereby there is an interruption of the flow of blood below the injury.

It may be due to embolism where a blood clot has broken away from some injured or diseased blood vessel or from some diseased portion of the lining of the heart, the clot lodging farther along at some arterial junction, blocking the blood supply to the tissues beyond. Emboli frequently come from some distant part of the body, far from the area where the damage is done. Because of the suddenness with which this occurs, it is much more dangerous than the slowly forming thrombus. Emboli can block the vessels which bring nourishment to important parts of the body, such as the brain, heart, lungs, kidney, liver etc. If the embolus is large enough it usually causes sudden gangrene of the affected part and death follows shortly after. However, some of the emboli are small, and though small areas of gangrene follow, nature is able to take care of them and repair them with the formation of scar tissue.

Another cause of gangrene is due to a thrombus which is a clot formation within a vessel. It may partially or completely close off the blood vessel at that area. It is very often due to infection but may follow injury, and may form in some cases where the blood flow has been impaired as in some forms of heart disease.

Gangrene may be due to arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries, especially the smaller arteries, in these cases, in which age or senility, or the hardening of the arteries associated with sugar diabetes are the two principal causes, the walls of the arteries become so thick that they encroach upon the lumen of the vessels and finally they are obliterated.

Another cause of gangrene is some disturbance of the nerve function to the area, as in Raynaud's disease, in which the sympathetic nervous system is affected, and there is constriction and obliteration of the blood supply to the areas involved.

In cases of what is known as gas gangrene, there is a bacterial involvement whereby the organism, Bacillus welchii produces an infection of the involved area. (Pd Adv.)

House Approves Measure To Reform Assessing Plan

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.

SALEM — The Oregon House of Representatives gave 34 to 24 approval Friday to the key bill of an eight-bill tax package to reform methods of assessing real and personal property. It goes to the Senate.

The bill defines true cash value as the highest price that the taxed property would bring on the open market. Supporters said it would result in more equal property assessments.

Before the House quit for lunch, it passed four other bills in this program. They would:

- 1. Have the Tax Commission make timber appraisals.
- 2. Let the Tax Commission appraise industries, after consultation with the county assessors.
- 3. Enable counties to obtain Tax Commission experts to prepare maps and plats.
- 4. Have the county boards of equalization meet in September so they can advise the assessors of needed adjustments before completing the tax rolls.

But the opponents said it would raise taxes, and is giving too much power to the Tax Commission.

The eight bills were prepared by an interim committee which studied the property tax problem for the past two years. The committee was instructed to define true cash value, equalize assessment methods, and devise a better method of reporting inventory under the personal property tax.

Rep. Pat Dooley, Portland, headed the 1 1/2-hour floor battle for the true cash value bill. He said that under present assessment methods, assessors use their own formula and the result is unequal taxation.

Dooley denied that any of the eight bills would give more power to the Tax Commission.

"Under the system we now have, assessed value has no relation to the actual value," Dooley said.

Dooley added that the proposed system might not work, either, but that it should be given a trial.

Rep. W. R. Giesy, Monroe, attacked the bill on the ground it would only increase taxes. Dooley answered that some taxes would be increased and some reduced, but that the overall total collections would be the same.

Rep. Joe Rogers, Independence, tried to get the bill sent back to committee, but his motion was beaten 48 to 10.

The Senate killed 18 to 10 a bill that would have let private clubs serve liquor without serving food. Opponents said that would be unconstitutional.

The Senate also defeated a bill to have the Oregon Development Commission advertise the state's resources in order to attract new business. This measure had been passed by the House.

A bill to raise the annual $12,000 salaries of Supreme Court justices to $15,000 was introduced in the Senate. Fifty-eight of the 90 legislators signed the bill.

Senate Passes Every Bill Presented In First 53 Days

By ESTHER GEDDES, Legislature Correspondent

Some of the members of the State Senate have been expressing concern over the fact that every bill that has been presented on the floor of the Senate has been passed. At least for the first 53 days of the session, every bill was passed.

To the untitiated this might seem to be an astounding fact when the enormous volume of proposed legislation is considered, and when the indisputable fact is mentioned that many proposed bills are neither necessary or desirable.

However, the fact that every bill voted on was passed during the first 53 days is in the way of being a very high compliment for the committees of the Senate. It is certainly commendable that the little working groups in whose hands have been entrusted all the new bills, are weeding out those that are impractical, unnecessary, or actually vicious, and are sending to the Senate for its consideration bills that are obviously meritorious.

To the grandstand audience it often seems that the consideration given various measures by the Senate in session is most superficial — and it is. The consideration, and the analyzing of the bill's merits, all take place in the committee room. And a very thorough job of weeding is being done by the committee members.

On Thursday evening, March 3, one senator was heard reproachfully remarking that every bill had been passed that was voted upon. The next day came the first defeat — and ironically enough it was one that he wanted passed, Senate Bill No. 178 has the honor of being the first rejected bill in the Senate. It would have virtually done away with the requirement that food be served in places where alcoholic liquor is served as a beverage. The only requirement left to qualify in many places would have been the organization of a "Club" for almost any purpose. In fact, one Senator pointed out that a club could be formed for the purpose of drinking and qualify for a license.

When much distaste was expressed over what this situation could cause, various legislators paid tribute to the Liquor Control Commission as being worthy of the confidence vested in them to choose wisely in the matter of licensing establishments.

Without denying that the commission could certainly be a discriminating agency, the Senate still opposed the removal of the restriction against selling liquor in places where food is not available.

And so, without any very violent struggling, Senate Bill No. 178 met its demise Friday morning, March 4, and it certainly is only the first of a number that are doomed to oblivion in the next few weeks.

Fuller Denies Killing Phenix City Crusader

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — In calm, measured words, Albert Fuller denied Saturday he killed A. L. Patterson or that he knew anything about who did.

The former chief deputy sheriff at Phenix City also told the jury trying him for first degree murder that he was a "personal friend" of the anti-vice crusading nominee for Alabama attorney general; that he supported Patterson in the campaign and was "criticized for it."

The 35-year-old defendant also denied he was at or near the scene of the murder before the killing or that he had been in the company of former Prosecuting Atty. Arch Ferrell at the time.

Prisoner Freed After 11 Months

KLAMATH FALLS — Andrew J. Bushman, 51, local carpenter who spent 11 months in jail without trial, was released Friday and said, "I still don't know what it was all about."

Bushman was arrested last April on a morals charge. Since then, one indictment was thrown out as faulty and two were dismissed on motion of the district attorney's office. Three judges had jurisdiction at various times. The state Supreme Court declared a law unconstitutional in the course of Bushman's freedom effort.

But it was the long lapse of time that finally got him out of jail.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard Beesley told Judge David R. Vandenberg that two children who were to have been witnesses for the state, no longer could remember the case. And so, he said, the best thing to do would be to dismiss it.

Political Parties Oppose Changing Date Of Primary

SALEM — Both of Oregon's political party national committee members took exception Friday to a bill by Sen. Pat Loneragan, Portland, Republican, to change the date of the primary election from May to August.

Sen. Monroe Sweetland, Milwaukie, Democratic national committeeman, and Mrs. Olive B. Cornell, Klamath Falls, GOP committeewoman, told the Senate Elections Committee they oppose the bill because it would force election of delegates to national party conventions by state political conventions. These delegates now are elected at the primary.

Sweetland flatly opposed any change in the date, but Mrs. Cornell said she'd like to see it moved back 30 or 45 days.

Sweetland said that 35 of the 30 counties voted in 1940 against a proposal similar to Loneragan's, and he said the change also would end Oregon's presidential preference primary.

Sweetland also said that shortening the campaign between the primary and the general election would help a candidate who could use "blitz" techniques through the press, radio and television, and against the candidate who had to "ring doorbells" and meet the voters face to face.

Tension Mounts Along Egypt, Israel Border

10 minutes but no Egyptians were wounded.

In Cairo, a military spokesman said Egyptian forces were "ready for anything" but denied a report that troops had been moved up to the border.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — The U.S. Security Council has left Israel know she faces strong condemnation unless she can produce a better defense of her role in the bloody Gaza incident.

The 11-nation council made this clear today after it held an urgent session to consider Monday's armed clash near Gaza, Egypt, that killed 39 Egyptians and 8 Israelis.

All council members, except Russia which sat silent, indicated that on the basis of preliminary reports they held Israel responsible.
