Oxnam Maintains Abundant Living Important Fact

PORTLAND (AP)—Methodist Bishop C. Bromley Oxnam, said Monday that the most important social fact of the present is the yearning of peoples for a more abundant living. The Washington, D. C., churchman said in a talk at Portland State College, it has seemed in previous centuries almost impossible to fulfill this yearning. But today, the yearning is linked to the conviction that "it is selfishness or ignorance" that stand in the way, he added. Oxnam urged in an interview the establishment of a world forum to fix international laws. He said world opinion would provide the discipline for their enforcement. The bishop said that it should be no more difficult for nations to give up some of their national sovereignty than it was for the colonies to surrender sovereignty to form the United States. "War will be homicidal—or suicidal—and we must learn to work out our problems together. Otherwise, we Americans and the Russian people will only die together," he said, adding: "Peace is like bread. It must be made every day." Oxnam was to speak at the University of Oregon at Eugene Tuesday.
