Winning Dream House Proves To Be Nightmare

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Russell L. Brand's sad story: from dream house to county jail.

Brand said the dream house—a $80,000 home, built for a motion picture and awarded to him in a 1948 contest—started all his troubles.

His attorney said Brand had to mortgage the house for $15,000 to pay the taxes on it. After he moved into the mansion pressure mounted, the attorney said. Business losses put Brand deeper in debt.

Finally Brand was arrested on grand theft charges for allegedly bilking people in used car dealings. Three charges against him were dismissed in Superior Court, but he got six months for a fourth.

Brand said he wouldn't be moving back into the dream house after he finishes his jail sentence. He said he had to sell it—to satisfy his creditors.

Geddes Rebukes Sweetland On Charge Against Heltzel

SALEM (AP) — Appropriation bills which usually glide unopposed through the Legislature from the Joint Ways and Means Committee, ran into rough water in the Oregon Senate Monday, and one of them went aground.

A bill to give the Willamette River Basin Commission $22,000 for the next two years came under attack by senators who live in the Columbia River area, and wound up back in the committee.

Sen. Lowell Steen, Milton-Freewater, protested the Ways and Means Committee's refusal to give any funds to the Upper Columbia Basin Commission, and said approval of the Willamette Basin Commission's request was "grossly unfair."

Steen said the Upper Columbia Commission was trying to service an area about two-thirds of the state, and was just as important as the Willamette agency.

Sen. Rober D. Holmes, Gearhart, joined Steen. The motion to send back to committee was approved 15-12.

Sen. Charles W. Binger, La Grande, chairman of the Ways and Means subcommittee that has been considering the basin bills, predicted the Willamette bill would die in committee.

Sen. Paul Geddes, Roseburg, said the Willamette commission would not need any money if the Senate passes a House bill to create a Water Resources Board. This board would take over the duties of the Willamette and Upper Columbia commissions.

Earlier, Sen. Monroe Sweetland, Milwaukie Democrat, took verbal swings at State Public Utilities Commissioner Charles H. Heltzel that drew a rebuke from Geddes.

Sweetland criticized Heltzel's request for $85,000 for rate investigations, and said Heltzel has approved utility rate increases totaling $7,199,000 in 1953 while reporting a reduction of $31,000 to one utility.

"The taxpayers of Oregon paid an electric power surtax of $4,600,000 in 1952 and 1953," Sweetland asserted.

Sweetland charged Heltzel engaged in political activities "when he went to Washington and took sides at a Senate hearing that assured us he was not trying to protect the people of Oregon."

When Geddes said Sweetland should "take your charges to the Marion County grand jury," Sweetland denied he had accused Heltzel of a "sellout" and further denied any animosity toward Heltzel.

The appropriation bill was approved.

Canyonville High Students Active

By VIRGINIA PROCTOR

Canyonville high school activities include both class parties and one-act plays.

Dinner, Skate Held
A potluck dinner and "skate" were held by the freshman class and guests recently. Under the guidance of Class Advisor Mrs. Carolyn Walker, the class held the dinner in the home economics room and then went to the local skating rink.

Canyonville High School dramatists will give a one-act play at Myrtle Creek High School Thursday at 2:15. Charles Dowd is the director. This is an exchange assembly with Myrtle Creek High School.

Col. Sourceon T. Hinkle, of the First Marine Division, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Hinkle, of Canyonville, just back from a 14 months' tour of duty in Korea, visited his family for the Easter holiday.

Hinkle, who arrived March 30, plans to stay in Canyonville two weeks visiting relatives here and then plans to spend the other two weeks of his leave in West Virginia, his former home. From there he will report in Rhode Island for nine weeks additional training.
