

AS USUAL THE SUN SHONE—The 21st annual Marketing Day in Roseburg for 4-H clubbers was a shining success. For the 21st time, old Sol smiled brightly on the picnic held on the Douglas County Courthouse lawn and front steps. No rain fell 'til mid-afternoon when 4-Hers were going home. Nearly 250 youngsters came to town for the event sponsored by the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce. (Paul Jenkins photo).

Helser Granted Chance To Correct Operation

SAN FRANCISCO — Federal district court ruled Friday there was sufficient evidence to warrant an injunction against J. Henry Helser & Co., Portland investment managers firm, but granted the defendants an opportunity "to bring themselves into compliance" with the investment securities act. The order by Judge Louis E. Goodman was the culmination of a three-week trial earlier this month in which the Security Exchange Commission sought to show the firm had violated the antifraud provisions of the act.

WANTS AUSTRIA FREED

VIENNA — Chancellor Julius Raab called on the Big Four powers Wednesday to free Austria from occupation by early November. With aged President Theodor Koerner at his side, the chancellor spoke at ceremonies marking the 10th anniversary of Austria's liberation from the Nazis.

Defense Claims In Sheppard Case Disputed By State

CLEVELAND — A spot of blood found in the bedroom of murdered Marilyn Sheppard "undoubtedly" came from the victim, the state contended Friday in disputing defense claims the blood came from the bitten finger of a prowler who was the slayer.

Coroner Samuel R. Gerber attacked findings of Dr. Paul L. Kirk, professor of criminalistics at the University of California, as "shockingly negligent and slipshod" in examining bloodstains in the murder bedroom.

Kirk, hired by attorneys for osteopath Samuel H. Sheppard, prepared a 50-page affidavit of a private investigation he made. The affidavit was entered in a hearing last Wednesday on a request for a new trial for the convicted wife-slayer on grounds of newly discovered evidence. The hearing was continued until next week.

Sheppard, convicted Dec. 21 of second degree murder in the July 4 slaying, has insisted a bushy-haired prowler killed his 31-year-old wife and injured him in ensuing struggles.

Kirk, backing up Sheppard's story, said he found evidence the murder was committed by a left-handed man who was intent on a sexual assault.

The crime expert said the murdered woman bit her attacker and blood from his wounded hand showed up as a one-inch spot on a closet door in her bedroom. He said the spot and a sample of Marilyn Sheppard's blood both proved to be type O. But their varied reactions to agglutination tests indicated they came from different persons. The osteopath's blood was type A, he said.

Radio listeners in the Roseburg area will have opportunity next week to hear many interesting programs relating to the observance of Conservation Week.

Stations KRNR and KRXL are giving full cooperation in programming special events and announcing daily schedules covering many phases of conservation activity.

KRNR reports a special program each day at 12 noon, Monday through Friday.

Monday, Vondis Miller, supervisor of the Umpqua National Forest and Boris Vladimiroff of the district office of the Bureau of Land Management, will be heard in a discussion on Forest Conservation.

Kenneth Gilkeson, past president of the Roseburg Rod and Gun Club, will speak Wednesday on the subject "Sportsmanship and Game Birds."

A panel discussion will feature the Thursday program. Bert Oar, secretary of the Umpqua Conservation Council; Bruce Yeager, Council president; and Charles Collins, secretary of the Oregon Wildlife Federation and supervisor of the Douglas County Parks Department, will discuss the privilege of hunting and fishing on private land.

Bert Oar will report Friday on the Game Commission's "Show Me" trip, which he attended as chairman of the big game committee of the Roseburg Rod and Gun Club.

KRNR presented Pitney in a program at 8:15 Friday night, discussing rehabilitation efforts on the North Umpqua River.

Perry Thiele, president of the Roseburg Rod and Gun Club, will be heard Monday night on the subject "Why Join a Sportsman's Club."

KRNR's Conservation Week programs will all be heard at 8:15 p.m. on the Home Town Digest schedule.

Other programs are being arranged by KRNR but have not yet been definitely scheduled. One, on the subject of predator control, is being prepared by James W. Vaughn, regional game supervisor.
