By COLIN FROST

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Soviet Union declared Wednesday it wants an end to the cold war, and will give careful study to the Western proposal for talks among the chiefs of government of the four powers.

A Soviet spokesman said Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin made these points in an address to the eight-nation Eastern security conference that opened Wednesday.

Russia and its associates are meeting to put their armed forces under joint command.

The spokesman told a news conference that Bulganin emphasized in his address that Western Germany's emergence as a NATO power has created a new situation in Europe.

Nonetheless, he said the Soviet Union is ready to support any acceptable proposal that might lead to German reunification.

To that end, Bulganin suggested the occupying powers—United States, Britain, France and Russia—should withdraw the greater part of the troops from Germany, leaving only skeleton forces there until Germany could become a united and independent nation.

The suggestion for removal of the bulk of non-German troops from Germany was part of a broad Soviet disarmament proposal, announced overnight in Moscow.

Bulganin asserted a main object of international diplomacy at this time should be to engender confidence that could lead to an easing of tension. He said the new Soviet proposals on disarmament are a great contribution to that end.

The Soviet Union, he added, wants "to put an end to the cold war."

'Hope Of God Is Sure,' Disciples Of Christ Told

WALLA WALLA (AP) — "The hope of God is sure" in this "chaotic era of the atom," 300 delegates to the annual Northwest Conference of Disciples of Christ were told Tuesday by Robert Tobias, Butler University professor of religion.

"God's hope includes harmony among men," Tobias said, "so we feed the hungry, work for peace and shatter the artificial curtains between races and nations."
