

Temporary Log Bridge Rising Over Slide Creek

Workers today were putting in a temporary log bridge over Slide Creek in the North Umpqua watershed, where an accident Friday afternoon dropped a steel bridge into the creek.

The bridge, owned by California Oregon Power Co., and a track and equipment dripped into Slide Creek after a logging arch on a lowboy behind the truck struck a support.

The driver of the Morrison-Knudsen Construction Co. truck was only slightly injured, reports Glide correspondent Mrs. Renort Selby.

Mrs. Selby also reported that the Slide Creek Trailer Camp was without water, because a water pipe across the bridge was broken.

The bridge, about 125 feet long, crosses the creek at a point about 70 miles east of Roseburg near where M-K workers are doing construction.

In Roseburg, H.C. Wells, district manager for Opeco, said the route would be re-opened in about two days, after completion of the temporary log structure.

Woman Injured
In another mishap near Glide Saturday, Mrs. Monte McCready, 44-year-old, received cuts and bruises and possible back injuries when the car she was driving backed over a steep bank near the new Lone Rock Bridge.

Mrs. Selby said Mrs. McCready drove onto the approach of the new Lone Rock Bridge, then backed out because of painting being done there. Apparently the car's brakes did not hold as Mrs. McCready attempted to turn the car around.

The car rolled down the bank almost to the river and was badly damaged. Only a tree kept the car from reaching the river, Mrs. Selby said.

and the second year rentals will jump to about $11,750. Coos Bay Oil & Gas Co. already has a well started in the Camas Valley area, but on private land. Backers of the venture have released little information on the project. Sinclair Oil has other holdings on private land in the Lower Umpqua area, and Oil Developers had leased several thousand acres of private land.

The State of Oregon has some control over production of oil, though a comprehensive code never has been adopted. The state has a right to set production quotas in the interest of conservation. All the lease contracts signed Monday are to be filed in the county deed records.

But officers said a camera roll found in Cannon's room contained no pictures of the singer. The hooded three-man gang, breaking into her home Sunday, took 102 pieces of costume jewelry and forced her to pose nude while they photographed her.

tary, James Boynton, North Bend, is outgoing president and will become president of the board of trustees. Mills formerly was second vice president. Pearson and Smith were re-elected.

Fire districts: All officers were re-elected with the exception of A. E. LaBranche, Salem, whom Pfaff replaced. Others are: Charles Billespie, Portland, president; Harry Ray, Eugene, first vice president; and Mrs. Norma H. Pfeiffer, Eugene, secretary-treasurer.

At a morning breakfast, Charles Roth, the Dalles fire chief, reported on a League of Oregon Cities conference. The fire chiefs are contemplating joining the league.

In a demonstration on electrical safety Monday afternoon, C. F. Haggard, safety engineer for California Oregon Power Co., sent a current through his own body to illustrate the effect of electricity on a man.

Wetting his hands first, Haggard placed one hand on a metal plate and switched on a faulty electric drill with the other while an assistant controlled the current passing through him. He showed that a small amount of current can "freeze" a man.

He also showed, with models, how contacts to burn or kill a man are made in the vicinity of high tension lines. One phase struck close to home—the electrocution of two men within 10 days of each other recently in Douglas County when cranes they were standing near came in contact with high-voltage lines.

Haggard emphasized that state law requires that the boom of a crane stay at least eight feet from transmission lines.

Haggard explained that though electricity is almost universally used in the nation, less than 1 percent of all fatalities can be traced to electrocution.

Delegates also heard reports by State Fire Marshal Robert B. Taylor and reports of officers and committees as the fire chiefs and fire districts groups split for separate business sessions Monday afternoon.

In the evening, a good turnout was at a smorgasbord held in the Armory.

This evening, Dr. Elmo N. Stevenson, president of Southern Oregon College, Ashland, will address delegates at 7 o'clock at Elks Lodge.

At 7 a.m. Wednesday, E. L. Smith, Salem fire chief, will speak on his observations of the "Survival City" A-bomb test at Yucca Flat, Nev., a Civil Defense demonstration which he witnessed.

Later in the morning, Standard Oil Co. of California, at the request of the Douglas County Oil Information Committee, will perform a demonstration with oil and gas-fed fires at the fairgrounds.

The fire chiefs will elect officers in the afternoon and award of attendance prizes and a panel discussion moderated by Smith will close the convention.

In the meantime, wives of delegates have been entertained. Monday afternoon, they were treated at a tea by the Roseburg Fire Belles and the Ladies of the Roseburg Rural Fire District at the Episcopal Parish Hall.

Glendale Home Burns To Ground Early Tuesday

The Willard Ellis home in Glendale burned to the ground early this morning, reports correspondent Mrs. G. B. Fox.

Mrs. Fox reports the owners were not at home at the time. Nothing in the house was saved.

The alarm was turned in by Police Chief Eugene Losey, who was alerted by an unidentified passerby. According to Fire Chief Monty Bates, the house had been burning for some time when the fire department arrived about 2:20 a.m.

He said it probably had been blazing for about a half an hour. Since it was too late to save the house, firemen concentrated on keeping flames from spreading to surrounding brush and neighboring houses in the west end of town.

The garden fence of one neighbor, Mrs. Allen Wellman, caught fire, but the flames were extinguished.

The owners of the house were not located immediately. It was believed they had gone to Portland, possibly a short time before the fire started, Chief Bates said.

Las Vegas Hit By Flood Following Cloudburst

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Flash floods unleashed by torrential desert cloudbursts hit Nevada last night, blanketing out this city of bright lights and derauling a passenger train in the northern part of the state.

There were no injuries reported but the damage in Las Vegas was expected to run over $100,000, and perhaps as high as a half million.

While power was quickly restored in most sections, an estimated 80 percent of all telephones remained out of order early today.

Mayor C. D. Baker said there was a strong possibility he would declare a state of emergency and ask for federal flood control aid.

It was the worst storm here in 30 years, he said.

Diamond Lake Rehabilitation Program Started

The second phase of the Oregon State Game Commission's Diamond Lake rehabilitation program will get under way Wednesday.

Bob Borovicka, district fishery agent of Bend reports initial restocking will start with 151,000 Kamloops trout.

The Kamloops, known as a "fighting" strain of rainbow, were reared at the Game Commission's Wizard Falls Hatchery and now average four to five inches in length. Four liberation units, under the direction of Kenneth Lehto, Lloyd Smith, Ray McKay and Cal Elshoff, will haul the trout from the Wizard Falls Hatchery to the release points at the lake.

New Concept Of C-D Arrives With H-Bomb

within the fallout danger zone should a bomb be exploded over Portland. But people here would have a minimum of four hours forewarning. Radioactivity in fallout which could reach here on prevailing winds would take about 12 hours to become neutralized through the natural deterioration of the radiological phenomenon, the colonel said.

Food shortages might be a problem in the state. Normally, there is enough food on hand to last through 8 1/2 days, for wholesalers and retailers carry heavy stocks. But the average family has supplies for only 1 1/2 days. Col. Shea's advised firemen that families should have a week's supply on hand.

The colonel said if the United States ever is attacked with thermonuclear weapons, the whole nation would be within a combat zone and every person would be affected.

Douglas County Area Free Of Forest Fires

Douglas County forested areas were reported free of fires Tuesday by Umpqua National Forest and Douglas Forest Protective Assn. personnel.

Forest areas to the south were not so fortunate.

Eight forest service men were sent to Siskiyou National Forest headquarters in Grants Pass Tuesday to help combat a forest fire which has burned over more than 300 acres near Brookings. The blaze has spread over snag and brush areas and is hard to control, according to Umpqua National Forest service fire control specialist Ray Hampton.

O & C Assn. Plans For Representative In Washington

The Assn. of O & C Counties has decided to employ a full-time legal representative in Washington, D. C., according to Judge Carl C. Hill, executive committee chairman.

Hill, who attended a meeting of the association in Portland last week, said the representative yet unnamed—will work on a retainer basis, with the primary purpose in mind of representing the 18 western Oregon counties comprising the association before the legislative and executive departments of the federal government.

Hill said the association feels a full-time man is needed to "watch the course of events" and take necessary action in matters affecting the O & C land grant formula.

At present, the counties of the association receive 75 percent of the revenue from timber from O & C lands and 25 percent of the revenue from federal forest timber, but there are and have been pressures to reduce this county income.

The association now has no Washington resident who is hired to represent it. In the past, Attorney Frank Sever, Portland, was flown to Washington whenever his services were needed there by the association.

Review Of State Legislation Given At Counties Meet

F. L. Phipps of The Dalles, executive secretary of the Assn. of Oregon Counties, presented a review of state legislative action affecting counties, at a meeting in Roseburg Monday of the Association's southwest district.

Other county matters also were discussed at session in the courthouse, hosted by members of the Douglas County Court.

Judge Guy Forsyth of Curry County presided in the absence of Judge James Harrison of Coos County, district member of the association's executive committee.

Besides Douglas, Coos and Curry counties, Jackson and Josephine are in the district.

About 20 men attended the all-day meeting, including two county engineers. All five county courts were represented. The officials had luncheon at Carl's Haven.
