Chinese Report Rebel Roundup

TOKYO (AP) — Peiping Radio announced the roundup of the fourth "anti-revolutionary" group in ten weeks.

Leaders of a group called "the Emperors" were arrested, some executed or given long prison terms, and others turned over to local authorities in Hopen province, North China, the broadcast said. The radio did not say how many were involved, but said 27 underground code rooms and hideouts used by the group had been found.

The origin and meaning of "The Emperors" was obscure, but the flat Hopen plain, crisscrossed by waterways, traditionally has been the breeding ground of revolutionary movements such as the so-called Boxer rebellion early in this century and later of the Communists guerrilla activity.

The broadcast, heard here, was a Chinese language voicecast, indicating the news was for internal consumption as Peiping's English and other foreign language broadcasts have not mentioned the Hopen group.
