Russian Failure To Discuss German Unity Would Throw Doubt On Sincerity—Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said Tuesday Russian failure to discuss German unification at the Big Four summit conference would throw doubt on Soviet sincerity toward easing international tensions.

Dulles said the division of Germany is a world problem which confronts the seeds of greater evil. Any realistic effort to promote peace must include work on German unification, he said. Referring to remarks by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov last week at San Francisco, Dulles said Russia appears to have lost interest in getting Germany unified. Molotov had spoken of the East West division of Germany as likely to continue for a long time. Dulles said he deplored this attitude. He added that if the Soviets really desire to advance the cause of peace they will talk about Germany at the July 15 summit meeting in Geneva.

On other subjects Dulles told a news conference: 1. The shooting down of an American patrol bomber by Soviet fighters over the Bering Sea last week seems to have been a "trigger happy" incident—not something which "represents a considered policy on the part of the Soviet Union." 2. The United States and Russia appear to be deadlocked over Russia's idea of holding a Far East conference, to include Red China as a participant, after the Geneva meeting. The United States feels Nationalist China should be present and Russia disagree. 3. Dulles does not rule out the possibility of direct talks between United States and Red China on some matters. 6

4. The United States would give very sympathetic consideration to a visit to the United States by Marshal Tito, president of Communist Yugoslavia, now being wooed by Moscow after breaking with the Kremlin in 1948.

5. Dulles thinks it possible that disarmament discussions at the summit conference may lead ultimately to reducing and balancing armaments between the Atlantic allies and the Soviet bloc.

6. Dulles sees nothing to be gained by piling up non-aggression pacts on top of each other. He thus discounted reports of United States interest in working out some European security system aimed solely at producing new promises not to attack.

7. If genuinely free elections could be arranged in Viet Nam, Dulles believes the Indochina country can be unified under a non-Communist government. But he indicated neither the United States nor South Viet Nam would accept elections not considered to be free.

8. The State and Justice Departments have been consulting on whether to contest a court decision that a citizen has a right to a passport unless it is denied him by judicial process.
