Multi-Millionaire Buys Huge Ranch On Molokai

HONOLULU (AP) — George Murphy, multi-millionaire Honolulu automobile dealer, probably will sell his 11,000-acre ranch at Prospect, Ore., now that he has bought the 13,700-acre Pau-O-Hoku ranch on Molokai Island for $390,000, an officer of his company said Monday night.

Murphy, president of Aloha Motors, is in New York. His company's treasurer, Robert Ching, said Murphy bought the Molokai place "in order to have a ranch a little closer to home."

Murphy bought the ranch from the Lacey K. Ward estate, which needed the money to pay inheritance tax.

The Ward estate bought the ranch nearly 10 years ago from Paul Fagan, Maui hotelman and former owner of the San Francisco Seals, for $473,278.

Prospect, in Jackson County, is on the Rogue River.

Another 720,000 Salk Polio Shots Ordered Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Tuesday released an additional 720,000 shots of polio vaccine. It was produced by Eli Lilly Co., Indianapolis.

The Public Health Service said the new release brings to 2,558,000 cubic centimeters (shots) the total vaccine released since adoption of the revised testing standards on May 26.

A spokesman said the Lilly vaccine was in process at the time the new tests were adopted, and was retested under the revised standards.

The spokesman said all of this vaccine would go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for its free program of vaccinating first and second grade school children. He said he did not know to what parts of the country the foundation would assign the vaccine.

In another development Tuesday, Senate and House committees unanimously approved separate to some groups of children and expectant mothers.
