WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said today "the American people will rebut" charges by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) that President Eisenhower offered "friendship to tyrants and murderers" at Geneva.

McCarthy denounced in the Senate Monday what he termed Eisenhower's "profession of faith" in a statement of Russian leaders that they want peace. He said he believes a "sell-out" to the Communists in Asia is in the making and he intends to "take the issue to the American people."

Goldwater, who heads the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee and says he regards McCarthy as a GOP asset, said in an interview that "I think the American people themselves will rebut Joe."

He said he doesn't believe the people will "buy" McCarthy's contention that the Big Four conference at Geneva constituted a rout for the free world forces. "I think the people are pretty well pleased with the outcome of the Geneva conference, even those who have some reservations about the matter," he said. "The people are for peace and they believe we have made a start toward getting it."

Soil Moisture Testing Equipment Use To Be Shown

MARVIN SHEARER . . . knows water value

The uses of soil moisture testing equipment and how they benefit farmers will be prime target discussions Wednesday at the third, annual irrigation field day in Douglas County.

Irrigation specialist Marvin Shearer of Oregon State College will be on hand to discuss good irrigation practices, according to Wayne Mosher, assistant county extension agent. Moisture measuring equipment now in use at the Clifford Hess bean patch in Garden Valley and the R. L. Harmon farm near the Riverdale Grange will be examined.

The equipment use is geared to telling the user when there is "too much water" or "when they should irrigate," Mosher said. He described it as a two-foot long stick-like apparatus which is placed in the soil. It is removed and read regularly.

The Hess land on Cleveland Rapids Road will be visited at 10:30 a. m., the Harmon farm on Quail Lane about 1:30 p. m. The sessions are open to all interested persons.

Binder Chain, Electrical Turning Signals Laws Go Into Effect, Officers State

Two new laws, one affecting binder chain requirements on logging trucks and the other dealing with required mechanical or electrical turning signals, become effective Wednesday throughout Douglas County and Oregon.

Both were passed by the 1955 State Legislature, state police said. House Bill 472 concerns binder chains. The new law requires that a load of five or more logs being transported by motor vehicle on a public highway must be secured by at least four binders. State police say the owner shall see that this is done. One binder may be a "gut wrapper" (that wraps around the middle of the logs) if the logs are longer than 16 feet.

If the logs are less than 16 feet in length, the owners shall "cause the logs to be secured" by two binders. Each shall have a breaking strength of 15,000 pounds. Additional regulatory powers have been delegated to the State Industrial Accident Commission, police said.

Senate Bill 123 states specifically when mechanical or electrical turning signals are required by law. The bill amends a previous law, ORS 483.126.

It requires signals: (1) When the vehicle is so constructed as to prevent the arm and hand signal from being visible, both to front and rear, to a wide load; (2) When "the distance from

Congress' Bill Grants Residence To Two Girls

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill granting permanent U. S. residence to two Mexican-born daughters of a Salem woman went to the White House Monday.

The legislation, guided through both houses of Congress by Oregon's delegation, removed the threat of deportation that clouded the lives of Mrs. Sarah Caroline Venegas and the children, 6-year-old Maria Elena and Sarah Lucia, 8.

An Immigration Service hearing officer ruled in Portland last April that the children were in this country illegally, having overstayed their visas. Only Congress could bypass this restriction, and the legislation received final approval last weekend.

The girls were born to Mrs. Venegas and her husband, a Mexican national. She later was divorced and moved to Salem, where she lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morse.

Any of the above named will be held responsible for allowing a minor to be on the streets except within the limits of the ordinance.

3. Anyone in charge of private premises where the public is allowed. Proprietors of businesses cannot allow minors to loiter on these premises.

The ordinance allows a certain flexibility, despite its stern nature. On the first violation, police can take or send a minor home for a violation and notify his parents.

If, however, reasonable grounds exist for belief that parents are not exercising "proper control, care or custody" the minor can be taken into custody and subsequently to court.

On the second, or any subsequent violation, police can take the minor into custody.

Penalties have been included in the ordinances for both minors and adults involved in any violation.

Penalties for violations by a minor can bring a $50 fine or confinement in jail for five days. Parents, guardians or others with responsibility for minors can be fined $200 under the ordinance or sentenced to serve 30 days. This applies also to those in charge of control of private premises where the public is allowed.

Both sentence and fine can be imposed on adults.

An Air Force spokesman said the processing at Clark Field will be pushed as fast as the physical condition of the men will permit.

The 11 were sentenced on spying charges after their B29 was shot down over North Korea Jan. 12, 1953. The United States denied the espionage charge, saying they were on a routine leaflet-dropping mission.

The commander of the B29, Col. John Knox Arnold Jr., Silver Spring, Md., was given a 10-year sentence. Sentences given the other crew members ranged down to four years.

The announcement of their release made no mention of two Army civilian employees tried with the Air Force men and given the longest sentences of the group. They are John T. Downey, 24, New Britain, Conn., sentenced to life imprisonment, and Richard G. Fetzer, 27, Lynn, Mass., given 20 years.
