

Supreme Court Asked To Rule On Traction Co.

SALEM — An effort to force Portland Traction Co. to restore interurban passenger service between Portland and Oregon City to its former full status, was made Monday in the state Supreme Court.

John McCullough, legal counsel for the Public Utilities Commission, asked the court to issue a writ of mandamus which would force the company to go back to its old schedule. Action is expected some time next week.

If the request is granted, the company would have to put back 10 runs each weekday to bring its schedules to 37. No date for the hearing on need for the service has been set.

The court action is not an appeal from a circuit court decision here which refused to grant the PUC an injunction against the traction company. It is a separate action.

Young Woman Charged With Theft Of Clothes

Elaine Leonard, 18, Roseburg, was bound over to the Douglas County grand jury after an extended preliminary hearing in district court at Roseburg.

District Judge Warren A. Woodruff ruled enough evidence was disclosed in the charge of burglary in a dwelling to merit further consideration by the grand jury. She was released on her own recognizance.

The brunette mother-to-be is charged by Carol Ann Lippy of 650 Patterson with stealing some of her clothes. Mrs. Leonard said she took the clothes from the unlocked house but only to borrow as she had done before. She said she and Miss Lippy had borrowed clothes from each other before.

The burglary allegedly took place about July 14.

Harvest of some 330 acres of pears in central Douglas County started today, according to Manager George Foster of the State Employment Service, but more pickers are needed.

The orchards are located in Sutherlin, Garden Valley, Melrose, Lookingglass and Winston. Picking will continue for about a month, Foster said.

He asked that prospective pickers contact his office. He said about 75 pickers are needed. They should have their own transportation. He said the harvest initially will consist of "ring picking," i.e. picking of only the biggest pears. Pickers will be paid 15 cents a box.

for radio station KYES from the Douglas County Broadcasters, Inc., submitted by Leroy Hiatt.

City Manager Farrell told the group his office had received some response from property owners in request by the city for help in the street renaming program. The city manager asked that persons desirous of assisting in the program return the ballots printed in last week's News-Review.

"As long as the people suggest names, their wishes will be given careful consideration," Farrell said.

The city is notifying the Roseburg Post Office and private utilities of changes as they are made. Farrell suggested that residents in the change areas notify their insurance companies of the new number and names.

Fire Chief W. E. (Dutch) Mills told the council he and other officers of the Oregon Fire Chiefs Assn. would present the special memorial service of the local department at the Pacific Coast International Assn. of Fire Chiefs' meeting in Sun Valley, Idaho, next month. He said the Roseburg group had been specially commended for the service.

lanta, Ga., who later signed a receipt acknowledging return of Bumpas and Brown's body.

"Can you tell me about your treatment in North Korea?" the Red officer asked.

Bumpas replied quickly: "It was all right. It was okay. The treatment—considering the circumstances—was all right. I was treated fairly well." He spoke in a voice audible to some 25 Allied officers, correspondents and cameramen standing on the other side of the armistice line.

Bumpas was asked: "What do you think of our medical treatment?"

He replied: "As far as I know—I'm no doctor—I seem to be getting along all right." The Allies have reported he suffered a concussion.

Finally, the Communist lieutenant colonel asked, "Do you want to say anything else?"

Bumpas, one step from freedom, said nervously, waving his hand toward the Allied side: "I'm through. I'm ready to go back."

After Dye signed a receipt for Bumpas, the Communist officer declared:

"Our side is hoping your wound gets well."

Bumpas replied: "Thank you very much."

Stratojet Bombers Arriving For World Air Power Series

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Stratojet bombers, arriving from all over the country for the "World Series of Air Power", continued to touch down Tuesday at March Air Force Base.

The six jets of each of the B47 medium bombers while in earnest Wednesday when the first flights of the seventh annual Strategic Air Command bombing and navigation competition take off for targets in Los Angeles and Sacramento, Calif., and Spokane, Wash. jointly at March Air Force Base and Fairchild Air Force Base near Spokane.

Eighty-one crews from the 24 B47 and 10 B36 bombers will be competing for the Muir Fairchild trophy currently held by the 11th Bomb Wing of Carswell AFB, Tex. The trophy is symbolic of bombing excellence.

The B47's will operate from March AFB, the B36's from Fairchild AFB. Each crew will fly three 3,000 mile strikes during the six-day competition.

The three targets are: The E. M. Jorgensen Steel Co. plant in Los Angeles.

The Campbell Soup Co. plant in Sacramento.

Centennial Flouring Mill in Spokane.

But employees in the plants need not worry. The planes won't use real bombs. Hits will be registered by radar and the results tabulated on a point system.

Feeding Of Garbage To Swine Draws Penalty

Henry Ford, a restaurant owner of Canyonville, was found guilty of feeding garbage to swine without a license and was fined $43 and $5 court costs Monday in a non-jury trial in district court at Roseburg.

Appearing on behalf of the state against him were R. C. Sexauer, veterinarian for the Oregon Dept. of Agriculture, and Dr. Kermit J. Peterson, state veterinarian.

The two men charged Ford with failure to comply with the law. They said Ford had applied for a license, but the premises and facilities were not satisfactory. They said the law was necessary to prevent disease which might be introduced through garbage to the swine.

Ford replied that he had improved facilities. Later, he related that he had just sold the swine Monday.

India's Ambassador Put Out Of Cafe As A Negro

HOUSTON, Tex. — Because a restaurant supervisor thought they were Negroes, India's ambassador to the United States and his secretary were asked to leave the public dining room of a swank eating place Monday.

Mrs. Mary Alley, the supervisor, was reported by a witness to have said she asked the pair to take service in a small private dining room. "The law's the law," she was quoted as saying.

The witness, Houston Public Relations Counsel Frank Gidler, said he was told by Mrs. Alley that she "thought they were Negroes."

Texas law forbids serving Negroes and white people in the same room. Houston's contract with the federal government, however, bans discrimination at the International Airport, where the incident occurred in the Horizon House Restaurant.

The Houston Post said that at least six witnesses told of hearing Mrs. Alley ask the ambassador, Gaganvihari Lalubhai Mehta, and his secretary B. A. Pajagopalan to leave the dining room.

The ambassador and his secretary looked at each other, smiled and, without protest, followed Mrs. Alley into a smaller dining room back of the cashier's cage.

State Dept. Apologizes To Indian Ambassador

WASHINGTON — The State Department Tuesday apologized to the Indian ambassador for an incident in Houston, Tex., where he was asked to leave a public dining room because he was believed to be a Negro.

A State Department spokesman said an official expression of regret was being telegraphed to Ambassador G. L. Mehta, who is now in Mexico City, and also to the Indian government in New Delhi.

Press officer Lincoln White said the apology was under the signature of Secretary of State Dulles.

British Airmen Finish First Leg Of Ocean Flight

NEW YORK — Two British airmen, trying for a round trip across the Atlantic in one day, put down their twin-jet plane here Monday morning, after a hurried and early lunch and then started streaking back to London.

The fliers landed at Floyd Bennett Field at 8:48 a.m., 7 hours and 31 minutes after taking off from the London Airport.

They left for home at 9:23 a.m. and hoped to make the return flight in 6 hours and 10 minutes—in time for a leisurely, and slightly late, dinner. That would get them back at 9:15 p.m. London time.

Their westward crossing time was almost on the nose with their expectations. They had aimed to make it in 7½ hours, with tail winds cutting their return time by an hour.

That would mean a 14-hour trip, covering 6,920 miles.

The fliers, pilot John Hackett and navigator Peter M. Penny, were flying a photo reconnaissance version of the Royal Air Force's Canberra jet bomber.

Although a round trip over the Atlantic in a single day was made in 1952, it was through a different route—from Northern Ireland to Gander, Newfoundland and back—2,765 miles shorter than the London-New York course.

Installation Of Comet Machine Ups Production

typewriter and having a normal typewriter keyboard, plus several keys governing operation of the typesetting machines. Different combinations of holes are provided for each letter of the alphabet and for machine operation. When this perforated tape is fed through the Linotype attachment on the Comet, it causes the Linotype keyboard to operate automatically, much as the oldtime piano roll operated a player piano. As the keys are depressed, matrices, or small brass letter molds, fall from the storage magazines and assemble into lines.

When a complete line of matrices has been assembled, it is automatically carried to a casting position. The matrices are presented to the face of a mold, and, in the casting process, hot molten metal is forced into mold opening and into every depression in the line of assembled matrices. It takes only an instant for the metal to cool, and the machine ejects a slug bearing a solid line of type exactly the right height for printing. Following the casting operation, the matrices are automatically distributed to their proper places in the magazine for re-use.

Output Capacity Doubled
These two machines, when put in full operation, within the next week or ten days, will approximately double the News-Review's mechanical capacity for production of "body" type—the type used in printing this and other news items appearing in the paper.

In addition to the two new Comets, the News-Review has two much larger Linotypes used exclusively for production of headlines and advertisements, and two machines used for straight-matter, headlines, advertising and miscellaneous production.

The two used machines being replaced by the new Comets have been sold.
