Two Oregon Catholic Clergymen Elevated
BAKER — Two Oregon Roman Catholic clergymen have been elevated by Pope Pius XII to the rank of domestic prelate with the title of right reverend monsignor. The Most Rev. Francis P. Leitzig, bishop of the Baker diocese, identified them as the Rev. Timothy P. Casey, pastor of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Klamath Falls, and the Rev. Michael J. McMahon, pastor of St. Peter's Church, The Dalles. The bishop said he had received word of the appointments in a letter from the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, archbishop of Laodicea, and apostolic delegate to the United States.

Employment Still Good In Douglas, Foster Reports
 Employment statistics in central Douglas County remained virtually unchanged from the previous month during September. George T. Foster, manager of the Roseburg office of the State Employment Service said. A few job openings were created when school started, but harvest work was reduced as the major crop of beans was completed. There was a slight increase in claims for unemployment insurance, but they were decreased about 25 per cent for the same period last year. The increase in claims for unemployment was laid to the September rains. Foster said most claimants returned to their jobs before the end of the month. No changes in employment totals are expected until more rains render dirt logging roads impassable, Foster said. He said some reports indicate a shortage of logs is being felt by some operators. Demand for lumber, however, appears to be holding up, which should keep employment constant. Job opportunities still are plentiful, according to Foster, with openings available in the lumber and trade and service fields of work. A shortage of qualified office workers still exists. The harvesting of prunes is nearly complete, and it will be followed by the Walnut harvest, which should begin sometime during the latter part of the month.

Fires Destroy 18,105 Acres Of Forest Lands
PORTLAND — Some 18,105 acres of national forest land in Oregon were burned in timber fires this year, the regional Forest Service office reported Monday. Washington lost only 75 acres. August lightning storms, which touched off several hundred blazes, were blamed for most of the Oregon damage. The 12 national forests in Oregon reported 789 fires, of which 521 were set by lightning. This compared with 468 fires in 1954, of which 359 were blamed on lightning. Last year only 403 acres were burned. The six national forests in Washington had 170 fires, 86 of which were blamed on lightning and 84 on other causes. Last year in the state there were 86 lightning fires and 38 caused by man. Some 121 acres were burned in Washington national forests last year.

Russia Says Atom Plan Belongs In Security Council
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Soviet Union said Tuesday that the proposed international atom-for-peace agency should be placed under the U. N. Security Council, where the big-power veto applies. Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov announced this stand to the General Assembly's Political Committee. The United States and its Western allies have opposed subjecting the agency's work to the veto. Britain, Canada, France and the United States favor having a self-governing U. N. specialized agency, reporting to the 18-nation Economic and Social Council. But India has introduced a resolution to have the Assembly decide that the agency should report directly to it. Since this is now before the committee for an early vote, the Western powers are obliged to decide now on the agency's links with the U. N.

Political Candidates Receive Typical Campaign Training
 By DON WHITEHEAD
WASHINGTON — Time: The present. Place: A political campaign classroom. Event: A gathering of candidates taking a course in political speechmaking in preparation for the campaign next year. The teacher calls the class to order. Teacher: "Gentlemen, we are gathered here to discuss the time-tried and time-tested phrases—all sound as a dollar (laughter)—which may at first seem old-fashioned, but which we find by scientific means to be as effective in these days of television as they were in days long past. Now, I shall call on Mr. A. Man Who is to come to the platform. He will speak as though you were an audience of voters—and I shall correct him and give him pointers where necessary for the benefit of all. Mr. Who?" Mr. A. Man Who arises and comes to the platform. He clears his throat, adjusts his glasses, assumes a confidential air, and begins: "Ladies and gentlemen. (Pause) Everyone who has known me knows that I never have shirked a clarion call to duty. You can depend on that as surely as you can depend on the sun rising in the East and setting in the West. And it makes me humble. "As my dear father used to say when he bounced me on his knee, 'The race goes to the strong, son.' But I also took to heart the words of my mother who told me every night after I said my prayers and she had tucked me in bed: 'Always remember, son, the meek shall inherit the earth.' "If you elect me, I promise I will help to the line—and you know my opponent can't even plow a straight furrow. (Laughter) "I promise you, my friends, that I'll treat the chips fall where they may. I'll treat friend and foe alike, without... without... "Teacher (prompting): "... (Resuming) With your help I'll go down the middle of the road and leave no stone unturned to give you the kind of government you expect and the kind of government every American citizen... "Please, Mr. Who! Must we go over this again? It's 'Every red-blooded, 100 per cent American.' "Mr. Who: "... That every red-blooded, 100 per cent American so richly deserves and which you will receive from me because I will regard it as a sacred trust. "I have known poverty, friends. I know the value of a dollar and I know that a penny saved is a penny earned. I know that the salt of the earth is the horny-handed son of toil. But his rough, graft ways must be softened by the tender, loving gentleness of the wife and mother who keeps the home fires burning. "And I say again, if elected I shall keep my shoulder to the wheel and march side by side with you to a better government. I thank you." (Loud applause) Teacher: "Thank you, Mr. A. Man Who! That truly was inspirational. And next week we shall hear a discussion: 'Keep your ear to the ground and your eye on the ball—but watch the straws in the wind.' "Goodnight!"

Morse Labeled Bitterest Personal Foe Of Ike
 EUGENE — Sen Wayne Morse (D-Ore) was described at a Republican meeting here Saturday as President Eisenhower's "bitterest personal enemy." Wendell Wyatt, Republican State chairman, told the meeting that the senator "must be retired" in the 1956 election. He added that he was confident a Republican president would be elected next year—either President Eisenhower or another candidate who would campaign on the President's program of "peace and prosperity."
