

CHARLES BRUNDAGE, above, owner of Weber's Bakery, has been literally up to his neck in fruit cakes during the last few weeks. He is genuinely happy over this year's especially successful fruit cakes as he had the fruits sent from the Hawaiian Islands.

MAJOR FRED A. DORIN, knows better than most about getting ready for Christmas for he has many people on the Salvation Army list to help during the holiday season. Since the Salvation Army does not have a large membership to ask for aid, it is only through the generosity of those wanting to help that the Christmas donations are received. Men and women in Salvation Army garb are to be seen on the business streets during the coming weeks to gratefully receive donations.

MANY PEOPLE are hard at work to help out during the coming days before Christmas. There are many more involved in dispensing Christmas cheer as well as those who help to make the shopping days easier and happier for the shopper. Remember, just 12 more shopping days until Christmas.

A SMILING AND HELPFUL clerk is one of the shopper's delights during this time of the year. Mrs. Robert (Bonnie) Harrison, above, is shown beside a large display of all kinds of Christmas candles at the Roseburg Book Store. No holiday table is complete without Christmas candles. A number of new types and shapes are to be found this year to add to the Christmas decorations.

WHAT WOULD THE HOLIDAY season be without poinsettia plants? Miss Marie Austin of the Fern Florists is shown beside some of the plants, which so well represent the holiday season. The poinsettia is one of the brightest and prettiest of the Christmas plants.

ROBERT SURKAMER, above, in spite of being one of the overburdened mailmen during the holiday rush season, is still able to smile and make everyone on his route glad to see him. Surkamer is married and they have a month-old son, Russell Scott. They reside on Vernon Lane in the Calkins Road district.
