Help Of Sportsmen Urged In Federal Game Survey

All sportsmen of Oregon are urged by the game commission to cooperate with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in their nationwide economic survey of hunting and fishing.

On Jan. 7, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, using a national survey organization, the Crossley Survey Inc., will begin gathering statistics through personal interviews to measure on a nationwide basis hunting and fishing in terms of persons taking part and the time and money spent.

The survey will report on hunting and fishing during 1955 to determine the number of persons of age and sex who hunted and fished for sport, plus the amount of time and money spent on these sports by each hunter and fisherman.

Questions To Be Answered Some of the questions that the survey is expected to answer include: What is the impact of hunting and fishing on the travel industry, service stations, restaurants, hotels, and retail stores? What will be the demand for various kinds of equipment? What are the chances for new jobs surrounding hunting and fishing? How much land and water will be needed for hunting and fishing?

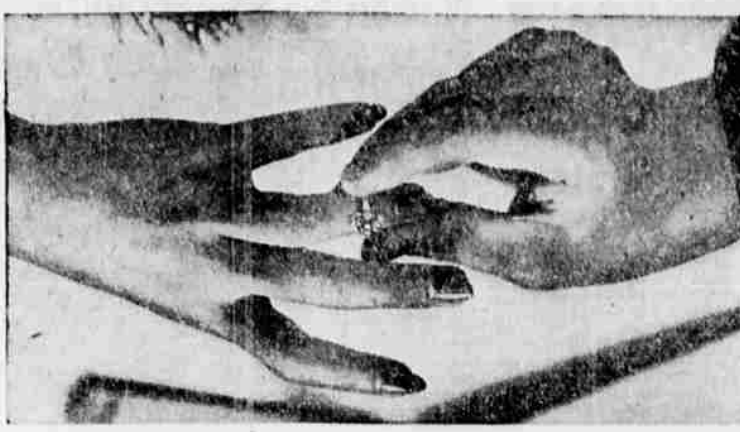

Perhaps the most important question of all which the survey intends to answer is: How important to the national economy are hunting and fishing and how big a demand for them should we expect in the future?

Conservation departments sportsmen's groups, segments of American business and industry, individuals have always maintained that the wildlife resources are of paramount importance to the nation's economy and welfare.

Game Meat Valuable "Meat values alone," states Phil Schneider, director, Oregon Game Commission, "Oregon's wildlife resources provided more than 9 million dollars worth of game birds, animals, and fish to the tables of Oregon citizens."

"And," Schneider continued, "This does not include the tremendous sums spent by sportsmen for guns, fishing tackle, equipment, and other expenditures in pursuit of these game birds, animals, and fish."

"The information gathered by the Crossley people will provide undisputed proof of just how important our wildlife resources are to the states and the nation," Schneider said. "It behooves all hunters and fishermen interviewed to cooperate wholeheartedly in the survey."

Oregon GOP Fund Raising Branch 'Deactivated'

PORTLAND — The Oregon Committee for Good Government, a Republican fund raising group outside the regular party organization, has been "deactivated," a spokesman said.

Stanley Goodell, recently appointed chairman of the Republican state budget and finance committee, said that "activities of such a committee do not have any part in my planning."

The "good government" committee, which was formed after Republican defeats in last year's elections, has performed a valuable service by collecting a substantial but unannounced amount of money for political activities in the state, a spokesman for the committee reported.

Principal organizers of the committee include John C. Higgins, David B. Simpson, Ted R. Gamble, Arthur Fields and Edgar W. Smith, all of Portland. Upstate members include: Anthony Bradenhaler, Baker; Hugh Coleman, Medford; Al Pierce, Coos Bay; William L. Phillips, Salem; and Gen. Curtis Beecher, USMC (ret.), Roseburg.

NAMED CHAIRMAN PORTLAND — E. Stanley Goodell, Portland, has been appointed chairman of the budget and finance committee for the Republican State Central Committee. Wendell Wyatt, state chairman, announced here.

Goodell has been active in the lumber and shipping industries nearly 30 years.
