Complete unofficial returns from western Douglas County show that four men will be battling for the three commissioner posts to be filled on the Port of Umpqua Commission in the fall.

The lone Democratic candidate Elmer Imus, received 531 votes. His three opponents in the Republican party are incumbent O. H. Hindsdale, 335; Dr. C. F. Howitt, 372; and Harold C. Johnson. Each term to be filled is for four years.

Returns from the last of the 11 precincts where voters balloted on the matter were received Monday. The precinct was Elkton.

About 200 Delegates Hear Ways To Reduce Accidents

Some 200 delegates from central Douglas County heard how costly accidents can be to both labor and industry at the Roseburg Industrial Safety Conference at Fullerton School Saturday.

L. O. Arens, State Industrial Accident commissioner, said: "We simply can't afford to have accidents, nor can industry afford to let them happen. Dollars just don't replace paychecks nor men."

He said the state has learned in a check of 8,800 lumber employees averaging $300 a month that without Oregon coverage, which ranks high in the United States, losses could range from one third of earnings for a man with six children to more than two-thirds of salary for a single man.

The group also heard from G. Scott Kallenbaugh, director of the accident prevention division of SIAC. He urged more safety consciousness on the job. He said 14 workers in Oregon live in such a "nice place it is strange that some people don't want to live and enjoy it."

He also called for adoption of some of the outstanding safety work in the major industries of the East for industries in the west.

Three panels were conducted in the afternoon session. Ivan Gay of E. K. Wood Lumber Co. of Reedsport discussed safety in sawmilling. He said one of the outstanding advances by his company was use of new life jackets in pond work. He said loss of life has been cut drastically because of the jackets.

Logging and log hauling discussions were conducted by Chet Diehl, safety supervisor of Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. of Springfield. He stressed clean cutting in the woods to protect fallers.

Herb Pashkowski of U. S. Plywood Corp. of Eugene and Robert Smith of Cascades Plywood of Lebanon spoke on safety in plywood plants and answered questions on plywood.

Pashkowski called the foreman the "key man." He urged the control of accident hazards, first aid facilities, regular inspection and thorough accident investigation and job instructions. Smith said safety comes through continued advertising and education.

Kenneth Davis, executive secretary of the Northwest Council of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers summarized the conference.

Prize winners were also announced in the high school safety speech contest. Winner was Sharon Landner, who won $12 for her speech on home safety. Second prize of $8 went to David Lyons for his speech on industrial safety and third prize of $5 went to James O'Neil on highway safety. Ted Prussia, Eugene, made the awards.

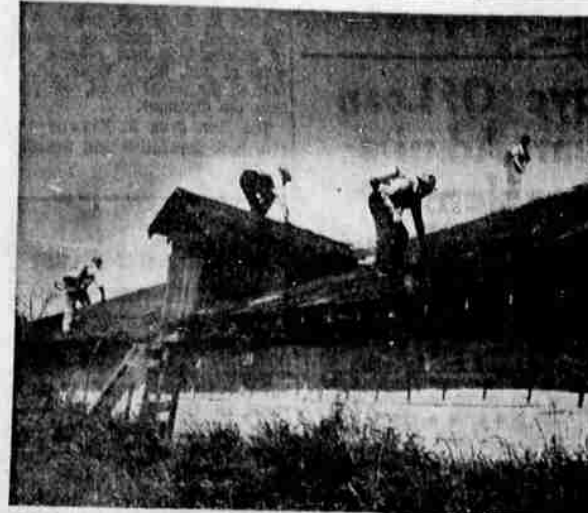

Awards were also made to the previously announced winners of the safety poster contest.

Chief W. E. (Dutch) Mills estimates damage of $1,000. Investigation is continuing to learn cause of the blaze which was reported at 1:45 p.m. Fifteen men fought the fire. (Paul Jenkins)

Lightning - Set Fires In Umpqua Forest Squelched

A lightning fire which burned 40 acres of heavy brush five miles west of Lemola No. 1 camp in the Umpqua National Forest this weekend is being "mopped up" Monday.

Lightning struck the snow-free south slope of Dread and Terror Ridge Friday afternoon, reports U. S. Forest Service Fire Control officer Ray Hampton. The blaze was spotted by Copco crews who took initial action to prevent its spreading.

Hampton said damage was slight in this first fire "of more than minor nature" in 1956. He said it was necessary for fire crews to plough through snow 8 feet deep in spots to get to the blaze.

Some 40 men, 10 of them forest service employees, the remainder Copco crewmen, were sent in. Hampton said the fire came a "little early" in the season. He said it was unusual that it struck in one of the slopes where the snow had melted.

He pointed out that the north slope of the ridge, behind the fire, was covered with snow "clear to the top."

The forest service had Roseburg pilot Shirley Wardie drop food supplies and bedding into the area for the fire crew Saturday. Saturday morning Hampton and Wardie flew over the area and also over Diamond Lake.

Only an ice fringe on the southeast corner of the lake remains, Hampton said, although the camp grounds are still buried in 3 to 5 feet of snow. The road to the lake up the North Umpqua Highway is open. Hampton said The Union Creek Highway from Medford and Highway 97 were about opened.

make requests by the city for special levies over the 6 per cent limitation unnecessary in most years to come, city officials say.

Should the measure carry, a levy of $140,723.04 outside the old 6 per cent wouldn't be put to a special vote. The new tax base would cover that amount with room to spare, Farrell said.

The levy was figured last week by the City Budget Committee as the amount necessary to balance the proposed 1956-57 city budget.

With the same tax precincts reporting, a recommitterial vote on whether the city water supply should be fluoridated was safely passed, 1,798 - 1,102.

Dispute Between Army, Air Force Nearing Congress

WASHINGTON — There were some indications today that Democrats in Congress will move to air fully and in public a row between the Army and the Air Force over defense spending and strategy.

The row flared up Saturday — Armed Forces Day, which is supposed to be dedicated to unity of the military services. While they were cooperating in displays across the country, some sources in the Pentagon gave newsmen documents declaring that present emphasis on air power could lead only to "national disaster."

The contention involves an Air Force contention that the Navy air arm could deliver only a "small" strategic punch. Another center around rivalry over missile development.

Toucing off the new row was the release of various Army papers. One of them said in part: "We continue to pour excessive manpower and money into an air force which has been substantially neutralized and which pleads for more money, more money, more money. We continue to divert large quantities of our military manpower into a navy that is seriously threatened by a nation with practically no naval experience or tradition."

Oregon GOP, Democrats Both See Victory Signs

The Republicans four years ago. They predicted McKay would pick up nearly all of the Smith vote in the fall.

There were no signs of acrimony as the aftermath of the Republican campaign. Hitchcock congratulated McKay and said they both had held to a common goal—defeat of Morse in the fall. He pledged his aid to McKay.

The ballot count was slow, but fewer than 60 small, outlying precincts were unreported Saturday as the vote confirmed Adlai Stevenson's 8-5 victory margin over Sen Estes Kefauver in the Democratic presidential write-in contest.

Stevenson got 88,262 votes, Kefauver 56,899. About 60 per cent of the registered Democrats voted.

Stevenson also got Oregon's 16 delegates to the Democratic National Convention and the psychological boost for the primaries coming up in Florida and California.

About 63 per cent of the registered Republicans turned out and 92 per cent of them marked their ballots for President Eisenhower, who was unopposed. He had 221,471 votes, the greatest number in either party.

Gov. Elmo Smith was next, piling up 217,852 as he won Republican nomination to succeed himself. His opponent was a political unknown, Earl Dickson, Albany grocer, who had 22,909 votes.

Smith's opponent will be Robert D. Holmes, Astoria radio station manager, who won the Democratic nod as expected, although his margin of victory was so narrow it gave party leaders a fright.

His opponent, Lew Wallace, Portland insurance man who has been on statewide ballots several times, announced some time ago he was withdrawing from the race because of a heart condition.

Nevertheless he ran up 100,102 votes. Holmes, who campaigned only lightly despite the fact it was his first time on a statewide ballot, barely squeezed ahead with 108,349.

Vice President Nixon was credited with 26,813 write-in votes for vice president, but his support undoubtedly was more than that. A number of counties decided against counting his total at this time, and the vote for him will not be determined until the official canvass several weeks hence.

Oregon's four congressmen won re-nomination. Three are Republicans. They are Sam Coon, who will be opposed in Eastern Oregon by Al Ullman, advocate of a high federal dam in Hells Canyon; Harris Ellsworth, who will be opposed in Southern Oregon by Charles Porter, Eugene attorney; and Walter Norblad, who will be opposed in northeast Oregon by Jason Lee, Salem attorney.

The fourth incumbent is a Democrat, Mrs. Edith Green, who will be opposed in Multnomah County (Portland) by Phil Roth, Portland attorney.

Two Portland attorneys were chosen as national committeemen. C. Girard Davidson, assistant secretary of the Interior in the Truman administration, led State Rep. Pat Dooley, Portland, by nearly 18,000 votes for Democratic committeeman. Robert Mautz, a University of Oregon football star in the 1920s, topped Dooley. John Merrifield by about 12,000 votes to become Republican committeeman.

Davidson replaces Monroe Sweetland and Mautz succeeds Jess Gard. Portland. Neither Sweetland nor Gard sought re-election.

Mrs. Virginia Grant, an attractive 33-year-old Portland cocktail waitress, provided an upset when she defeated a political veteran, Mrs. Gladys Last, Portland, for Democratic national committeewoman.

Portland E-R Site Settled; Mayorality Resting On Runoff

PORTLAND — This city's $8,000,000 exposition-recreation center apparently will be located on the east side of the Willamette River.

After a heated campaign, voters approved by a margin of 406 votes a measure which restricts the site to the East side. The vote was 84,209 to 63,803. The result was not determined until returns from the last precinct were counted from Friday's election.

A mayor's committee chose the South Auditorium site at the edge of the West side business district. East side residents then put the issue on the ballot.

Runoff For Mayor Looms

Sheriff Terry Schunk of Multnomah County will have to go into a runoff election next November with the man he is trying to unseat, Mayor Fred Peterson of Portland.

Schunk emerged from Friday's primary election with a 17,000-vote lead over Peterson, but with seven other candidates in the field, he fell short of the needed majority. Schunk had 69,233 votes, about 48 per cent of the total. Peterson had 52,185. The other seven divided about 23,000 votes.
