Boy Swimmer Drowns In South Umpqua River

Engle was pronounced dead by Douglas County Coroner L. L. Powers at 6:55 p.m. He was the fifth person to drown in the county this year.

Roseburg city and rural firemen joined many others in the search for the youth. While firemen used a grappling hook to locate the body, swimmers watched a rapid area several hundred feet down stream. Residents along Melrose Road, between Myers Corner and Goedeck Road, said the South Umpqua Current changed every year. The change made the search difficult.

Later afternoon sun poured down on the searchers, many of whom swam through the water area again and again. On shore, surrounded by friends was Mrs. Maynard Engle, mother of the boy. Composed in the hour of tragedy, it was she who appeared to be consoling others.

Meanwhile, in the river, Maynard Engle, father of the boy, was part of the search party.

Later, when the body had been recovered, Mrs. Engle spoke softly to her husband with tragic finality. "Honey, it's too late now."

According to the boy's swimming companion, John McIntyre, 1194 W. Lookingglass Road, the youth sank about 30 feet from the west shore. McIntyre said it was the first time either had come to the area this year to swim.

Roseburg firemen were called to the scene at 5:55 p.m. Rural firemen arrived earlier. Two boats were used in the search, directed by Roseburg Fire Dept. Lt. Don Starmer. One boat belonged to the department, the other to Douglas Tudor. Starmer estimated young Engle had been in the water at least 15 minutes when the first boat arrived. Grappling operations started immediately.

Eugene Leroy Engle was born April 11, 1939, at Boise, Idaho. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Engle of Rt. 4 Box 1440, Roseburg.

He moved with his family to Douglas County in 1948 from McClary, Wash.

Survivors include his parents two brothers, Richard and Donald, both of Roseburg.

The body has been removed to The Chapel of the Roses. Funeral services will be announced later.

Green Sanitary Dist. Budget Receives Airing

About 12 persons attended a public hearing on the first Green Sanitary District budget held at the Green School Monday night.

Warren Engle, chairman of the Green Sanitary District board; Mel Hanna, board member; and Attorney Gordon Carlson explained the provisions of the budget to their audience and answered questions on it.

The budget calls for a total of $7,711 for the 1956-57 fiscal year. Of this sum, $2,996.52 is for expenses already incurred by the district.

The hearing on the budget was required by state law. No changes could be made in it at the meeting. Voting on the budget is slated for July 16 at the Green School from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Election results will be crucial to the future of the young sanitary district which has a stormy first-month history. Since it was formed in September 1955, it has survived three dissolution elections which failed by slim margins each time.

The intensity of the controversy in Green over the sanitary district was exemplified in the words of one man at the hearing who stated that "the reason more people aren't here is because they're so mad they would want to fight."

City Council Begins Junking Old Ordinances

es being shucked in the latest batch is one calling for the prevention of opium smoking houses in the city.

Still another problem the city fathers of 1881 coped with was one of horse racing on the streets of Roseburg. With ordinance No. 41, such shenanigans became illegal. Later, it even became illegal to hitch animals to trees or light posts.

By 1918, the city fathers had taken on a patriotic hue. They made the town untenable for even self-respecting bums. An ordinance was fashioned to "prevent male persons, who are physically fit from remaining idle."

That same year, the dream of a standard gauge railroad from Roseburg to Rock Creek died with the repeal of an earlier ordinance. In 1915, an ordinance was adopted after a vote by the people calling for the railroad.

These and the host of other earlier ordinances tell a harrowing tale of the struggle for progress.

New Business Transacted
Harking back to 1956, however, the present council continued working on its own problems. In other action for the night, the council:

1. Selected R. D. Ritzman, transportation committee chairman; George Farrell, city manager; and Mayor Ernest A. Barkner Jr. to investigate methods of temporarily, at least, solving the present transit problem. (The Roseburg Transit Co., the city's only public bus line, quit operating two weeks ago.) Seven letters calling for restoration and "14 or 15" telephone calls were reported by Farrell.

2. Received bills for a new police car, but tabled them until bids included estimates of trades-in allowances. The bids were made by: PAL Motors for Oldsmobile $2,166.12; Hansen Motors for Chevrolet $1,611; Barcus Sales and Service for Plymouth $1,689; Lockwood Motors $1,738.60. The bids will be presented again with trade-in allowances at the next meeting.

3. Heard that paving of Hamilton Avenue had cost more than expected. It had originally been estimated the cost would be $10,915.55, but Roseburg Paving Co. said the work had come to $12,770.88. The additional amount was explained as due to additional sewer and other installations found necessary.

City Budget Adopted
5. Adopted the 1956-57 city budget of $638,657.15 and the levying of the necessary taxes.

6. Set a public hearing for Aug. 27 on the subject of vacation of part of the corner at Northeast Klamath Avenue and Lincoln Street at the request of Henry Bailey.

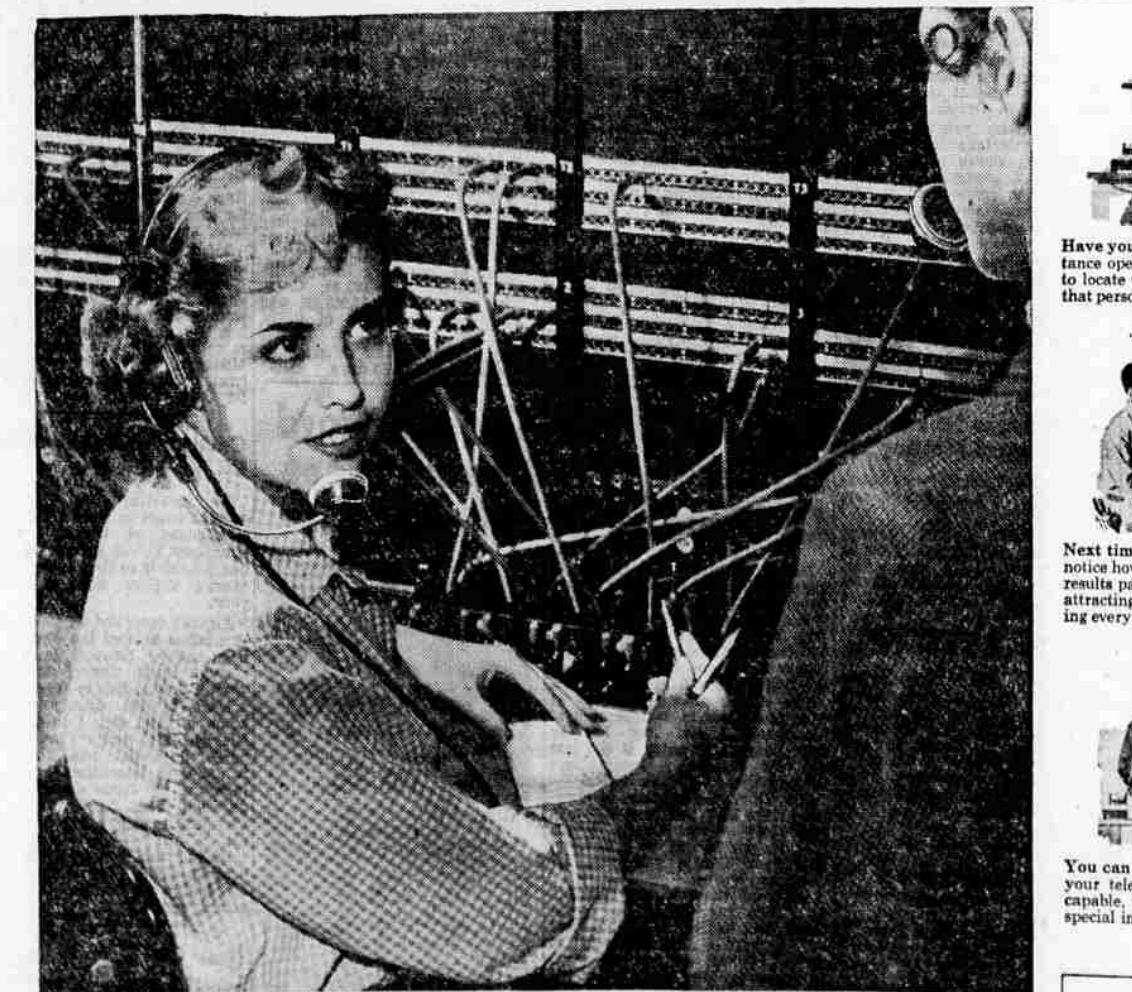

7. Turned down a request by M. E. Greshong of 373 W. Chapman St. to allow him to build a carport in front of his house. City Building Inspector C. N. Currier said the port would extend eight feet into city street right-of-way.

8. Turned over the planning commission a request by Spence Yates for vacation of part of a street in Western Heights on Hawthorne Terrace and extension of Hawthorne Drive south along what is now Tamarack and east along what is now Magnolia Drive.
