Bonneville Area Power Plans Get $26 Million Fund

PORTLAND (AP) — Bonneville Power Administration will receive 26 million dollars under the public works appropriations bill signed by President Eisenhower last week.

William Pearl, Bonneville, administrator, said Wednesday $18,700,000 is for construction and $7,400,000 for operation and maintenance.

He said that in addition, $4,422,000 is available in carryover from the previous fiscal year and $333,000 in reimbursements.

Pearl said $10,073,000 was planned for new projects, most of them aimed at meeting increased demands for power. In Western Oregon and several Washington areas. The new projects include a transformer capacity increase at Keeler substation to handle northwest Oregon loads; a 230,000-volt transmission line from Santiam substation to Alvey substation to supply southern Oregon needs; a substation and 115,000-volt transmission line to step up service to eastern Grant County in Washington; increased capacity of the Grand Coulee-Olympia line; a 220,000-volt line from Round Butte to Redmond, Ore., to carry to the main grid the output of Portland General Electric's proposed Pelton Dam; a substation at Toledo, Ore., and a 230,000-volt line to it, a 115,000-volt line from Columbia Falls to supply northwestern Montana; and a 115,000-volt line from Big Eddy substation to DeMoss to supply north central Oregon.

Future Costs Listed

During fiscal 1957, major work under construction will require $12,628,000, Pearl said. He listed these things: transmit Chief Joseph power to the Puget Sound area; connect The Dalles power house with the main grid; and reinforce existing facilities in the Seattle, The Dalles, Portland, Coos Bay, Pasco, La Grande, Wenatchee and Spokane areas.

Funds requested for major transmission grid additions, totaling $15,398,000, include Chief Joseph-Snohomish No. 3 and Chief Joseph-Covington No. 1, $3,413,000; Lower Olympia Peninsula service, $503,000; Snohomish substation additions, $224,000; The Dalles area service, $904,000; southeast Portland area service, $312,000; Ross-St. Johns-Keeler, $224,000; Oregon City-Chemawa, $715,000; Big Eddy-Keeler, $290,000; Keeler substation additions, $969,000; Round Butte-Redmond, $422,000; Santiam-Alvey No. 2, $1,478,000; Coos Bay area service, $325,000; Alvey-Reston, $1,762,000; McNary-Franklin, $370,000; eastern Grant County, Wash., service, $1,400,000; Columbia substation additions, $410,000; Spokane area service, $69,000; Columbia series capacitors, $507,000; system reactive facilities, $1,071,000, and main system neutral boosters, $30,000.
