Diplomat Denies Woman's Charge

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Max Bishop said Thursday "I never shook my fist in any lady's face in my life."

He expressed amazement in an interview at published accounts of a talk he had with Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, widow of the late publisher of the Chicago Tribune, at a dinner party in the home of British Ambassador Berkeley F. Gage, here May 1.

Back from a round-the-world tour, Mrs. McCormick said in Chicago Tuesday Bishop had threatened to seize her passport because she wanted to enter Red China as a press observer.

"He put his fist in my face, then said he controlled half the U. S. Senate and that he would have my passport withdrawn if I continued to try to visit Communist China," she said.

The Ambassador, a man who gestures as he speaks, commented that he recalled the after-dinner talk was "mostly just social conversation."
