Standard's new radiation-resistant lubricants are helping put atomic power to work

Progress in the West means...
1956
atomic energy will be needed to help meet 1975 power demands of nearly twice those of 1956 1975

During exposure to atomic radiation, some petroleum oils are turned into solids, hard enough to drive a nail, useless as a lubricant

BY 1975 the world will use nearly twice as much energy as it does today—and atomic power will be needed to supply part of the growing demand. Helping develop this new power, Standard research teams have been working with the Atomic Energy Commission on many projects during the past 10 years.

One of our most urgent problems was to find lubricants for atomic machinery able to withstand withering radiation. Using a brand-new base derived from petroleum, Standard scientists developed oils that last two to three times longer than conventional lubricants—and speed the day when commercial atomic power will help drive planes and ships, and generate electricity for your home.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA puts petroleum progress to work for you

Now flowers speed cross-country by telephone. Many floral shops now offer a new service—Flowers by Telephone. When flowers are to be sent out of town, the florist calls the distant city and places the order before the customer leaves the shop. If the flowers asked for are out of stock, the customer is free to change his order, knowing his flowers will arrive on time. Florists who offer this new service display an emblem reading: "We speed flowers by telephone." It's another way telephone people—working with florists—make telephone service do a better job for you. The men and women of Pacific Telephone work to make your telephone more useful every day.
