Glendale School Board Approves Lunch Program

Mrs. Laura P. Wells, director of the Oregon school lunch program, was present at a recent special Glendale school board meeting, according to Mrs. G. B. Fox, News-Review correspondent.

She explained the school lunch program and what the school would be expected to do in participating. The board decided to use the program this year.

Under the state aid program, the school is required to serve a type A meal. It will be given certain surplus commodities, such as butter, flour and some canned foods. This will enable the school to serve the same meal quality at a slightly reduced price. It is hoped the program will enable the school system to reduce the present price by about five cents, said school officials.

Miss Doris Holmes, health education instructor, will be in charge of ordering and accounting for commodities received from the state program.

It was announced that the steel counter topping for the grade school cafeteria has arrived, and plans are to open the cafeteria by Oct. 1.

The board decided at its last regular meeting to have repair work done on the grade school gym, where meals will be served, and to paint the walls and ceiling.

Program Changes Accepted By PTA

By JEAN YODER

Those attending the first meeting of the Days Creek Parent-Teacher Assn. accepted most of the recommendations made by the executive committee, presented to them by the new president, Mrs. Frank Lee, recently.

Major change recommended by the executive committee and explained by Mrs. Lee is to do away with the children's programs formerly presented each meeting, and substitute some other type of program was accepted. Another recommendation was that the membership cards be available for sale.

Archie Ferguson, school clerk, gave a complete report on the hot lunch program.

Mrs. Lee reported that the returns on the Boy Scout questionnaire showed at least 20 boys interested. The first meeting for those adults interested in helping with Scouts was held at the school last week.

There was a vigorous discussion on why the school board had cancelled the annual school picnic, usually held the last day of school in the spring. Mrs. Louise Morris asked board member Lawrence Michaels if the PTA could do anything to get the board to change its decision. Michaels replied that the board was not acting arbitrarily and would appreciate having interested people come to the next board meeting to express their views.

Although there were many abstaining votes, the PTA voted to have Mrs. Morris and Durin Swingle go to the next meeting and ask the board to reconsider. According to Michaels, the board felt that fewer and fewer adults were attending the picnic, and that since the picnic had formerly been a general meeting and games day for the entire community, it had outgrown its use and should be abolished.

Mrs. Joe Kapuscinski, secretary said that they should change the idea of the picnic, with it to be a day for the children, rather than for the entire community.

A teachers' reception followed with School Supt. Marlen Yoder introducing each of the teachers.

Navy Scientists Say Moon Flight Is Now Possible

WASHINGTON — Two Navy scientists said today it may have become possible to send a rocket to the moon.

The rocket probably would deliver no more than a "four-pound payload" to the moon, said Kurt R. Stehling, chief of propulsion at the Naval Research Laboratory here, and Richard Foster, a member of the laboratory propulsion staff.

For that reason, they said, the initial payload might consist of nothing but a charge of metallic dust. They said that if it were fired at a new moon and if it landed on the darkened surface, the impact might be witnessed from the earth as a large bright flash.

Stehling and Foster expressed their views in an article prepared for a new magazine, Missiles and Rockets. The article is based on a paper scheduled to be read at the International Astronautical Federation Congress in Rome.

They stressed that the opinions expressed were not to be construed as reflecting the views of the Navy Department.

Stehling and Foster said that "when carried aloft to 70,000 feet by a huge four-million-cubic-foot skyhook balloon, a solid-propellant step rocket will be capable of bringing a four-pound payload to the moon."

They noted that small rockets frequently have been carried aloft and launched from balloons, but added that a lunar rocket might require a cluster of smaller balloons for greater stability. The Rocket would be launched straight up, through the balloon or balloons they said.

The Navy scientists proposed a three-stage rocket vehicle which they said should hurtle the payload toward the moon. The distance between the moon and the earth varies from 221,463 to 252,710 miles as the moon moves around its orbit.
