He May Be Late But Still Around, States Thornton

Former Douglas County Sheriff Cliff Thornton and explorer Roy Chapman Andrews have an unusual common problem.

Both have been termed "the late" in stories appearing in print.

"Twice Andrews has read in Time Magazine of his demise. The last time caused him to write the publication a letter announcing he felt "fine." It was printed, too.

Thornton, a healthy 51, was surprised recently to learn he was no longer around. So were friends who sent messages of sympathy and cards in jest, after they learned all was well.

The Roseburg businessman who owns a motor court and ranch and has an interest in a highway construction operation was sheriff in the early days of World War II. He joined the service and took a leave of absence. Later, he resigned, and Bud Carter was elected sheriff. Thornton did not return to law enforcement work after the war.

This week, he admitted he'd been somewhat amazed when a recent News-Review story about the sheriff's reserve, which he organized in October, 1941, stated he was "the late Cliff Thornton."

Color Motion Picture Scheduled By Church

Billy Weeda, who plays the part of John Leigh in the sound, colored, moving picture which will be shown at the Sunday morning Christian Church next Sunday morning, plays his own life story.

Weeda is a student of one of the church-related colleges of the Christian Church and his acting lends a note of realism to the picture "Where Do Ministers Come From?"

All the main parts of the film were taken by students on the campus of Northwest Christian College of Eugene.

The public is invited to see this film Sunday morning, at 9:45, for which there is no charge. An offering for the Northwest Christian College will be taken.

Boy Finds Widowed Mother Dead From Blow

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 41-year-old widow of a year, who supported her 8-year-old son by working as a domestic, was bludgeoned to death with an axe last night.

The son, Charles Zubryd, found the body of his mother, Mrs. Helen Zubryd, in the basement of their home about 20 miles northwest of Pittsburgh. He had just returned from a brief visit to a neighbor's home.

Homicide Detective Ted Botula said Mrs. Zubryd apparently resisted the slayer. An autopsy was ordered to determine if she had been criminally assaulted.

Shortly after the slaying, Elmer Skiles, a 63-year-old neighbor, died of a heart attack while guiding newsmen to the slaying scene.

Otto Cahill Enters Oregon State Prison

SALEM (AP) — Otto Cahill, convicted of converting water district funds to his own use, entered the Oregon state prison Tuesday for the second time in a year to serve a one-year term.

Cahill, former official of a water district in Lincoln County, had gone to prison in June but was released a few days later, pending outcome of an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. That court refused to consider the case and Cahill was ordered back to prison.

He was accused of misappropriating $750 belonging to the Taft-Neilsen-Delake water district. Cahill was a leader in an anti-vice crusade in Lincoln County two years ago, and his charges led to a grand jury investigation. The only indictment returned was against Cahill on the misappropriation charge.
