

Paganini Quartet Given Big Welcome By Local Audience

Something new in entertainment was offered Tuesday night, when the Paganini Quartet presented the third in a series of five Roseburg Community Concert Assn. programs in the Central Junior High auditorium.

This is the first time such a string quartet has appeared in Roseburg. Henri Temianka, first violinist, explained to the audience the group's makeup and choice of selections. He said a string quartet is similar to a vocal quartet with the first violin taking the upper register or high notes, the second violin the lower register; the viola, the part of the baritone, and cello, the base.

He emphasized that in the quartet, every note counts, in contrast to a symphony, where a missed note here and there might go unnoticed.

Playing the second violin was Gustave Rousselet; viola, Charles Foldart; and cello, Lucien La Porte, all soloists in their own rights.

The group was enthusiastically received by the large, but not capacity, audience, which braved Roseburg's coldest weather for the evening's entertainment. The entertainers were roundly applauded and brought back for repeated curtain calls and encores.

Idleyld Route Woman Dies At Age Of 22

Janice Elaine Boyd died at her home on Idleyld Route Tuesday evening at the age of 22 following a long illness.

She was born April 30, 1934, at Hastings, Neb., and had lived here the past two years. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Roseburg.

SISTER MARY Stanisla is shown getting a short course in the operation of Mercy Hospital's own radio station, W-E-L-I. Explaining the workings is Richard Prock, representing the manufacturer. (Paul Jenkins).

GETTING ACQUAINTED with the "diversional therapy" of the new radio system at Mercy Hospital is Mrs. T. Chester McGregor. Explaining the workings of the "pillow speaker" is nurse Mrs. Richard Boss. (Paul Jenkins).

Mercy Hospital Installs Pillow Loudspeaker System

Patients at Roseburg's Mercy Hospital are now able to enjoy radio by remote control as part of a "diversional therapy" program.

By placing a remote "pillow loudspeaker" within the patient's reach, he can switch the radio on and tune in one of six preset channels. The radios are connected with a master set located in a room on the first floor of the hospital which, operating on channel 5, can be run as station W-E-L-I with both AM and FM capabilities.

Included in the master set is the radio transmitter (which only reaches radios in the hospital).

Sub-Freezing Weather Continues Over County

Creek area where crews of the Albert Loggia Co., under contract to U.S. Plywood Corp., were working in snow above their knees. Logs dumped into the U.S. Plywood pond by truck drivers failed to crack the ice. Ponds were frozen in other parts of the county, as well.

In the southern Douglas County area, the temperature fell to 12 at Glendale and to 8 up Crow Creek from Azalea, according to News-Review correspondent Mrs. G. B. Fox.

One of the coldest temperatures recorded in the county was the farm of Wilton Garrett, some three miles east of Glendale. He told Mrs. Fox that his thermometer read 2 below Wednesday morning. However, the coldest reading had come Sunday when the temperature dropped to 4 below there.

Although no new snow was reported in the southern county sections, there were still 26 inches of roadside snow at Milo, west of Tiller.

In the northern portions of the county, Elktion reported a reading of 18 this morning and Drain had 16 degrees. The sky was clear, but spots of ice and roadside snow were still holding.

Necessary to the present conditions, ice patches were reported floating down the branches of the Umpqua River system Wednesday and 50 feet of shore ice held to the shore at Winchester.

The weather outlook for the next few days calls for "a moderating influence" in the form of a weak storm from the northwest. This is expected to bring light snow to night, light rain in the valleys Thursday and snow in the mountains Thursday.

President Eisenhower Says Wilson Used Unwise Words, But Had Interest At Heart

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday Secretary of Defense Wilson made a very unwise statement in saying that draft dodging developed in National Guard enlistments during the Korean War.

But Eisenhower told a news conference he is sure that Wilson's main interest—just as it is his—is to try to assure that the Guard is a well trained military unit in event of an emergency.

Eisenhower also said he is standing by his statement of several months ago that John Foster Dulles is the greatest secretary of state in our time.

Commenting on attacks on Dulles by Democrats in Congress, Eisenhower said Dulles has wisdom, experience and knowledge possessed by no other man in his field.

The latest controversy swirling around Wilson was touched off two days ago when he said before a House committee that "a sort of scandal... a draft-dodging business" turned up in National Guard enlistments during the Korean War.

Asked Wednesday whether he shares Wilson's view on that, Eisenhower shot back that his questioner knew better than that. The President said Wilson was short-cutting when he made that assertion. It was, Eisenhower said, a very unwise statement made by Wilson without thinking.

Although criticized by Guard spokesmen and some members of Congress for his Monday statement, Wilson declined to back away from it Tuesday.

Instead, when interviewed after a call at the White House, Wilson in effect repeated his statement, and told newsmen he saw no reason whatsoever to apologize for it.

Wilson said then it had not figured in his meeting with Eisenhower.

In talking about the matter Wednesday, Eisenhower said he wanted to emphasize that anything the National Guard has done has been done within limitations of the law.

He went on to note that youths aged 17 to 18 may enlist in the Guard. Eisenhower said he long has struggled to make the Guard an efficient, well trained outfit capable of protecting the nation.

Then, defending a new Pentagon policy, Eisenhower backed Wilson in saying that Guard recruits should get six months of basic military training instead of the 11 weeks the Guard favors.

Eisenhower said he was not pointing a finger at the Guard, and that he was sure Wilson was not doing so.

At the airport Eisenhower stood by as full military honors were accorded to 55-year-old King Saud, who flew here from New York in Eisenhower's plane, the Columbine III.

Saud told Eisenhower he looked forward to frank talks which would lead to better relations between their peoples on the basis of "amity and mutual interests."

The King is due to remain here three days. Eisenhower responded in kind.

A crowd estimated at more than 4,000 strained for a glimpse as the brown-robed monarch stepped from the plane. Following right behind, came a robed aide carrying Saud's 6-year-old son, a polo victim.

ident did not approve in advance. The actions that were taken, Eisenhower continued, were not spasmodic, were not impulsive, they did not come off the top of the head.

Eisenhower added that he would be the last to deny that he and Dulles have made some mistakes. But he said those members of Congress who are attacking the secretary of state have not pointed to any specific errors and have not offered any constructive alternatives.

A reporter noted that in voting for an inquiry into U.S. Middle Eastern operations over the last 12 years, the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees had raised the question of what executive documents will be made available.

Dulles has agreed to give the senators a report and Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) said Wednesday the secretary will be asked for details in his talks with heads of foreign nations.

Fulbright said the information he wants from Dulles about dealing with foreign heads of state is "pertinent" and the senators must have it for their Middle East inquiry.

Oregon Waters Covered By Ice; Rain Predicted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Western Oregon waters were frozen as they hadn't been for seven years when Weather Bureau forecasters Wednesday said they were confident the worst was over.

Skaters frolicked on ponds—31-year-old Henry Bendinelli broke a leg when his blade work went wrong on Portland's Laurelhurst Park pool Tuesday night—rivers were frozen and thousands of workers had to turn to unemployment aids because their plants were closed.

But in Western Oregon Wednesday night there will be snow for a little while, and then warming air will turn the snow to rain, the forecast said, bringing a slow but definite end to the ice.

Eastern Oregon will get some warming, too, but Wednesday night's low may drop close to zero. Cold as that may be, it represents a warming trend.

Baker Wednesday at 4:30 a. m. had a low of minus 15—and before the day's warming started, the mercury had slipped a bit more to minus 18. That was Oregon's coldest.

The Weather Bureau explained the warming trend will come from a storm moving slowly down from the Gulf of Alaska, bearing marine air. The moisture from it will fall first as snow, then in Western Oregon as rain. And in northwestern Portland, which continues chilled by Columbia Gorge winds, the rain most likely will freeze as it falls, forecasters said.

The moderating of temperatures will continue over a period of days, forecasters said, with freezing still occurring for several nights in Western Oregon.

The long cold spell caused the Nehalem River, a north coastal stream, to freeze from bank to bank near the bridge at Mohler. A resident of 60 years, August Schollmeyer, said he couldn't remember that ever happening before.

The South Santiam at Lebanon, had only a narrow open channel near its center, its most solid freezing in 20 years.

Portland Harbor was a sea of ice cakes, mostly jammed together and linked by a light crust that was broken only as tugs went by to open up a channel.

In Crater Lake National Park, ice was around the edges of the lake, but the center still was free. Only in 1950, so far as records show, has the whole surface of Crater Lake frozen.

Husband Held In Death Of Wife By Shooting was an 8 mm. Mauser rifle, the bullet passing through the woman's right elbow and into her upper abdomen, Coroner Powers stated that Mrs. Geisler died of internal bleeding.

Sheriff Byrd said that a neighbor, Mrs. Corsette Gano, had left the house after a visit a minute or two before the shooting. Mrs. Geisler had accompanied her to the front porch, the sheriff added, and when she turned and re-entered the house, she was struck by the rifle bullet.

Mrs. Gano was about 150 feet away from the house at the time, the sheriff said, and Geisler appeared in the door and asked her to go home and summon help. She fled to the home of a neighbor whose son called the sheriff's office, Byrd said.

Geisler was standing on the opposite side of the living room from the front door when he fired the shot, the sheriff stated.

Geisler was employed as a plywood worker at Evans Products Co.; Mrs. Geisler was a saleslady at Woolworth's department store.

The body was removed to The Chapel of the Roses, where funeral arrangements will be made.

Former Glide Resident Succumbs At Oakridge
Former resident of Glide, Frank R. Wilson, died in Oakridge Sunday. He lived in Glide between 1925 and 1935. He was born in Missouri in 1887.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. John Burt, Winston; three sons, Raymond, Loren and Chester, all of Oakridge; three brothers, John of Roseburg, Joe of Eagle Creek and Bob of Castle Rock, Wash.; and three sisters, Mrs. Mae Schaffer of Roseburg, Mrs. Effie Croucher of Portland and Mrs. Ada Udell of Castle Rock.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Chapel of the Woods, Oakridge.

Car Pulled From Rogue R.; No Occupant Found Inside

MEDFORD (AP) — A 1952 station wagon plunged into the Rogue River some 17 miles north of here Monday night and was pulled from the river late Tuesday morning. No one was in it.

Dragging operations began immediately for the occupant or occupants.

State police said they believe Charles J. Howe, about 60, manager of the Grants Pass office of the W. A. Darling Real Estate Co., was in the car alone.

The vehicle went off the Pacific Highway near Miller's Gulch Bridge shortly before 10:30 p. m. Monday.

The car was recovered from the river about 12 hours after the accident.

The auto was registered to Cecilia Cochran of Grants Pass, police said. Mrs. Cochran had registered the car in her name before she married Howe.

Authorities said they learned that Mrs. Howe boarded a bus for California late last week and they are checking to determine the whereabouts of her two sons by a previous marriage to learn whether either may have been in the car.

Howe had left Grants Pass at about 7 p. m. Monday and was en route to Medford to see Darling of the realty firm before going to Eureka, Calif. The accident was witnessed by two Glendale residents in a passing car, Hugh Brown, 23, and Sharon Jeffries, 18. They told police they were traveling north on the highway when they noticed the southbound auto moving at a high rate of speed and weaving along the road. The car, they added, swerved in front of them and then went over the bank into the river.

Removal efforts began quickly and a wrecker was summoned from Gold Hill. Within half an hour after the accident, a line was hooked to the submerged auto but it came loose when the wrecker started to pull.

While they were trying to hook the car again, operations were interrupted at 1:15 a.m. when a spectator, Ray Holmes of Rogue River, slipped and tumbled 20 feet down the bank, knocking himself unconscious and plunging into the water.

A boat crew, working around the submerged car, pulled Holmes from the river. He was hospitalized here with head cuts and other injuries.

Racketeering Probe Funds Get Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee approved unanimously Wednesday a resolution to authorize a nationwide $250,000 Senate investigation of alleged racketeering in labor unions and industry.

The resolution now goes to the full Senate for a vote, perhaps later Wednesday.

The measure would create a special eight-member bipartisan committee which Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) is expected to head, with broad authority to conduct the year-long investigation.

The resolution would arm the committee with virtually unlimited authority to investigate "the extent to which criminal or other improper practices or activities are, or have been, engaged in" by persons or groups "in the field of labor-management relations."

McClellan said the language is broad enough to prevent any successful challenge of the committee's authority by prospective witnesses.
