Senator Wants Age-Old Law On School Changed

SALEM — Sen. John D. Hare (R), Hillsboro, wants to modernize one of the state's oldest laws.
The law, enacted by the Territorial Legislature, chartered Pacific University at Forest Grove in 1854.
Hare said the streamlining is necessary to make possible a federal loan to the university for construction of new dormitories. The old charter, granted five years before Oregon became a state, established Tualatin Academy and Pacific University and limited property the institution may hold to $500,000.
