Wheatmen Hear Plans To Step Up Consumption

PORTLAND (AP) — Oregon wheat industry representatives, meeting here in an attempt to find ways to boost the value of their production, heard a number of recommendations at Wednesday's closing session.

Further research for new, improved kinds of bakery and other wheat products was urged by Vic Moen, chairman of the conference's marketing committee.

The 200 industry representatives also were told by Moen that a Pacific Northwest wheat council should be formed to launch a long-range program for solving financial and other problems of the industry.

All segments of the industry should be represented on such a council, he said.

The secretary of the Canadian Wheat Board, C. B. Davidson, said at a mid-day luncheon meeting that both the United States and Canada have a wheat surplus but are dealing with them in different ways.

Acreage expansion has not been a problem in Canada, in Western Canada, Davidson said, the wheat acreage has declined since 1945 and was down to 20.6 million acres in 1956.

The Canadian Wheat Board administers annual pools for wheat, oats and barley and all surpluses are returned to producers.

The only price guarantee Canadian growers have, Davidson said, is the initial price the board sets for all grades. When the producer takes his wheat to market, he receives the initial price and receives additional payments later based on the results of the board's sale pool.

The conference, held under the direction of Oregon State College and the Oregon Wheat Commission, was to adjourn Wednesday afternoon.

Neuberger Asks Californians To Oppose Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore) said Wednesday he is inviting California's two Republican senators to join him in opposing the administration's public-private power "partnership" plan in the Pacific Northwest.

Neuberger said the invitation stems from a recent statement in which, he said, Sen. Kuchel (R-Calif) "condemned Secretary (of the Interior) Seaton's proposal for a partnership with the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. on the Trinity River."

The Oregon senator released excerpts from a speech he prepared for Senate delivery inviting Kuchel and Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, to work against "partnership" plans for projects both in California and on the Columbia River in the Pacific Northwest.

"Now that partnership threatens the Trinity River Basin in their own state we invite them to join us in pushing to passage the bill for the great federal high dam at Hells Canyon," Neuberger's speech said.

Plea Of Guilty Entered To Embezzling Charge

SEATTLE (AP) — A plea of guilty to embezzling $1,000 from the First National Bank of Portland was entered Tuesday by Irvin LeRoy Bleak, 19, former teller at the bank's Klamath Falls branch.

Federal Judge William J. Lindberg, who received the plea on transfer of the case to Seattle, where Bleak has been working, set March 18 for sentencing.

The complaint charged Bleak with embezzling the money last Aug. 30.

Oceanographic Search Base Slated At Coos Bay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Tuesday it plans to start construction of an oceanographic research base at Coos Bay, Ore., by the end of May.

It will cost approximately $1,200,000 and cover some 40 acres.

Rep. Porter (D-Ore) said he was advised the base, first of its kind on the Oregon coast, would have a complement of 8 officers and 89 men by September, 1958.

The Navy earlier had announced plans for a similar station at Pacific Beach, Wash., on which construction contracts are expected to be awarded in mid-March.
