Shall The Groom Be Forgotten?

BY JACK WEST

One of the great comedians of radio and television recently cracked, "Are grooms people — or are they just a quantity in the wedding ceremony?"

I call this to your attention because it is quite a serious side, too. It is this: the groom should not be overlooked when it comes to gift giving. That's the whole story in a single sentence, but much more could be written about it.

Personal gifts, of course, make the perfect present for the young man getting married. If you are uncertain about what he would like, here are some suggestions that should help you do your selecting. Here, of course.

Come in and pick out a handsome set of cuff links, either in silver or gold. The newest styles are exceptionally attractive and can be engraved with his initials if you wish. Maybe you'd like to give him a beautiful watch. Nothing could be finer. And for as little as $29.75 you can get a handsome timepiece he'll wear for years to come.

Visit us today and do something "really nice" for that young man who is about to be married.
