

Three Persons Killed In Airplane Accident

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)—Three persons were killed in the crash of a Canadian airplane near Telegraph, B.C., Wednesday, the Ellis Air Lines office here reported Thursday.

Four persons aboard an Ellis plane escaped with only minor injuries when their plane crashed while circling the wrecked Canadian craft. They possibly were caught in the same downdraft condition.

The Ellis office said the Canadian plane was believed to have been operated by Peterson Airways of Allin, B.C. It burned after crashing about eight miles from Telegraph Creek just a few minutes before the Ellis plane arrived overhead.

Cross Explains Union Funds Paid To Mrs. Lower

WASHINGTON (AP)—James G. Cross, Bakers Union president, testified Thursday he paid Mrs. Kay Lower, a convicted Los Angeles prostitute, "between $5,000 and $6,000" of his union's funds as a secret organizer, and possibly $1,000 more.

He swore the payments were "only for union activities," and denied vigorously that he paid her rent or gave her $700 to replace her wardrobe after burglars had looted her apartment.

Cross had listened silently to testimony by a government tax investigator that expense accounts to the union by Cross in the year 1956 totaled $39,395.14.

The investigator said that $30,005.28 of this represented charges for entertainment and "gratuities" for which Cross submitted no receipted bills to show that the money actually had been spent.

This testimony before the Senate rackets investigating committee came from James Mundie, a veteran tax agent on loan to the committee as one of its own staff investigators.

Cross, called to the witness stand then, was questioned closely about his money dealings with Mrs. Lower, also known as Elsie Kay Thorpe.

Second Italian Try Fails To Form Government

ROME (AP)—Amintore Fanfani, 49-year-old Christian Democratic Party leader, Friday became the second man this week to turn down the job of forming a new Italian government.

After three days of fruitless talks with the warring parties of the political center, Fanfani called on President Giovanni Gronchi to report he was unable to accept the mandate.

The decision by Fanfani, on the 47th day of crisis, left Italy about where it was in the first week of May, when the two-year-old government of Christian Democrat Antonio Segni collapsed.

Gronchi's next move was uncertain.

Submarine Nautilus Arrives In Portland

PORTLAND (AP)—The nuclear-powered submarine, the Nautilus, was tied up in the Portland harbor Thursday. Hundreds viewed it from shore, but only a few persons got aboard.

Some Navy reserve members, public officials and a few news-tour of the first atomic undersea vessel, but the general public was not admitted.

The Nautilus made the run up the Columbia River to Portland Wednesday. It tied up beside the west side harbor wall, between the Burnside and Steel bridges in the center of Portland.

The vessel will leave Friday for San Francisco.

Strontium Could Present Threat, Says Scientist

EUGENE (AP)—Strontium 90, the deadly by-product of nuclear explosions, could present a threat to humans and animals in the Willamette Valley, Dr. Raymond Ellickson, University of Oregon physicist said.

He told the Eugene Rotary Club that Strontium 90 is readily absorbed by plant life in areas where the soil has light deposits of calcium. Willamette Valley soil, he said, is bleached by heavy rains and is "terribly calcium deficient."

Strontium 90, if absorbed by humans, can cause leukemia and do severe damage to genes, Ellickson said.

If there is any Strontium 90 in the soil, its harmful effects might continue for years, he said.
