

Canadian DEWline Slated To Be Ready This Month

WASHINGTON — The U.S.-Canadian DEWline, a 3,000-mile electronic alarm system designed to detect the approach of enemy bombers — is expected to be put into test operation sometime this month.

The Distant Early Warning line's main portions runs from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Baffin Island, facing Greenland. It is the farthest north of three such systems guarding the trans-polar air approaches.

Main construction phases of the 40 million dollar system have been completed. Final installation of the complicated electronic and power equipment is expected this month.

Supplemental materials still are being moved into the difficult and often nearly inaccessible locations in which DEWline personnel will maintain their vigils.

The Navy said Friday night it is massing ships at Labrador and Greenland to carry "Army transportation corps personnel, construction materials and supplies to the Distant Early Warning radar network."

It said 48 ships will leave Seattle July 15 for Point Barrow, arriving at the end of the month. From there, the Navy said, supplies from these ships will be unloaded along a line running 1,800 miles eastward, an area of "dangerous polar pack ice."

Prolonged testing operations are expected to continue through the summer.

"Operational status" may be attained by fall or early winter. In operation, it is intended to give three to four hours' warning to areas in Southern Canada and the Northern United States.

The U.S. Air Force, which built and will operate DEWline, now is training civilian crews recruited here and in Canada to man the stations under Air Force supervision.

American funds are being used for DEWline with Canada providing the land and some of the transportation.

Two Women Spend Crime Anniversary In Confinement

CHICAGO — Two women—sentenced to 180 years in prison for murder—spent Saturday in solitary confinement in observation of the 22nd anniversary of their crime.

Evelyn Smith, now 68, and Blanche Dunkel, 66, were removed to the solitary cells at sundown Friday in accordance with the 1935 order of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

The two women were convicted in 1935 of the murder of Ervin J. Lang, 38, Mrs. Dunkel's son-in-law.

Judge Harrington when sentencing them called the crime "one unfeelingly executed" and ordered that the women spend each anniversary of the slaying in solitary confinement.

The order was carried out every year until 1954 when Illinois Atty. Gen. Latham Castle ruled it need not be followed. The following year, however, the attorney general's office reversed itself and the once-a-year confinements continued.

During the trial testimony indicated Lang was killed after he planned to break off an illicit romance with Mrs. Dunkel. The jury was told Mrs. Smith promised $500 for her part, pled Lang with liquor, drugged him, strangled him, and then with her husband's help, dismembered the body.

Mrs. Smith's husband has never been found.

Custody Dispute Is Temporarily Settled By Court

KANSAS CITY — A Japanese war bride's dispute with her airman husband over the custody of their three small children was settled temporarily in court Friday.

St. Roy Samuel, stationed with the Air Force in Tacoma, Wash., and his wife, Tomiko, agreed to allow a neutral family to keep the children until they solve their differences.

Samuel, represented here by counsel, has said he plans to file for divorce. It was because of his intentions that Tomiko, who lived here with the children, tried to poison herself and the youngsters May 18. All of them have since recovered.

She told authorities at the time that she received a letter from her husband saying he was in love with another woman in Tacoma and wanted a divorce.

Since then, James E. Holberg, Jr., Tomiko's sister-in-law, has been keeping the children against her wishes, prompting Friday's juvenile court hearing. Samuel has said he intends to retain custody of the children.

Scalped Woman Must Await Skin Grafting

SAN PABLO, Calif. — Mrs. Loretta Galbraith, whose scalp was torn off in a boat accident, must spend at least 50 days in a hospital for skin grafting treatment.

Her doctor said Friday that skin tissue was ripped off 34 square inches of the 50-year-old bookkeeper's head.

Mrs. Galbraith caught her long dark hair in the propeller shaft of a cabin cruiser Thursday. She was rushed to Brookside Hospital, and Dr. Elsa Ross sent a deputy sheriff 30 miles back to the boat to recover Mrs. Galbraith's scalp.

Dr. Ross said the tissue was used as a temporary covering for the wound.

Russian Purges May Sweep Thousands From High Posts Throughout Soviet Empire

EDITOR'S NOTE — Harold K. Milks covered from Moscow the first stages of the current Communist purge, then flew to Prague on assignment. This dispatch is not subject to the censorship that controls all filing from Moscow.

By HAROLD K. MILKS PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — New purges sweeping thousands of Soviet Communist Party officials from their jobs are expected to follow the ouster of the Molotov-Malenkov-Kaganovich group from the Kremlin's supreme command.

The new purges may be conducted so quietly they get no recognition in Pravda. But in Prague it is accepted as a certainty that Nikita Khrushchev and his supporters will lose no time in removing from the lesser echelons of the Communist party all those who, by action or word, have opposed the form of Leninism preached by Khrushchev.

It is too early to outline the probable pattern of the purges will take as they move from the top down through state, district and neighborhood organizations of the party.

But no violence is expected. It is unlikely the firing squad system Joseph Stalin used against his political enemies will be brought into play. Throughout the Soviet Union, probably many Communist leaders will find their office doors closed. They will be invited to accept jobs as workers on collective farms or in factories.

Political experts in Prague believe it is unlikely that the ousted leadership will be able to do anything to disrupt the system.

Foreign diplomats in Prague include experts on the Soviet satellite system. They predict these countries will line up 100 per cent behind the Kremlin ouster.

As for Tito and his followers, they are in a position to applaud Khrushchev's move and crow: "We told you so all the time."

Teen-Age Gang War Results In Death Of Youth

HOBART, Ind. — A teen-age gang war ended early Saturday when a 17-year-old boy was dragged to his death under the car of a rival group.

The death of Larry Blair, East Gary, Ind., brought the state's holiday traffic death toll to 10.

Police in this northwestern Indiana city said Blair was dragged for a block under a car filled with teenagers who sped out of a drive-in restaurant parking lot. The youth was dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital in Gary.

Five of Blair's companions were held for questioning, and police were searching for the six boys in the death car.

Authorities said the "war" began at a dance Friday night in nearby Portage, where one member of Blair's gang fought with a youth in a rival faction.

The other boy, police said, picked up five friends and chased the Blair car to Hobart, "playing tag" by bumping the two vehicles together on the busy highway.

Police said Blair's gang got out and tried to enter the other automobile when they reached the drive-in parking lot, but the other six youths locked the doors and rolled up the windows.

Blair was standing in front of the vehicle when it suddenly started up, knocking him down and dragging him away as it sped off.

Police said it is possible the occupants of the car did not know Blair was caught under the automobile.

Russia To Give Proposal Study

LONDON — Russia has promised to give careful study to the U.S. offer to meet the Soviets on a half-way in dismantling nuclear weapons.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin declined immediate comment. However, on Harold E. Stassen's latest proposals as the five-nation U.N. disarmament subcommittee recessed yesterday until Monday.

Winding up his presentation of the new U.S. plan for ending the atomic race, Stassen suggested the nuclear powers begin breaking down some of their H-bombs for peaceful use as soon as agreement is reached to halt the building of new atomic weapons. The U.S. government wants to keep a strong atomic weapons potential.

Stassen said the United States would agree to a 53-47 ratio with the Russians in turning fissionable H-bomb material over to international agency. The United States would provide 53 pounds, the Russians 47.

KANSAS CITY — Mrs. Marion G. Williams, 29, former New York model, has filed suit for separate maintenance against the millionaire she married in an airplane flying over Iowa.

Williams, 54, is the developer of a cemetery chain. The couple was married in a 44-passenger chartered airliner on July 30, 1955, while a sky-writing plane sketched hearts and arrows close by. They have a year-old son.

White House Receives Letter From Kefauver

WASHINGTON — The White House said Saturday it had received a letter from Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) on the Hells Canyon Dam controversy, but declined to say whether it would be done about it.

"We have a letter" was the only comment made by press secretary James C. Hagerty. He added President Eisenhower, spending the weekend at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, had not seen the letter.

Kefauver said Friday he had written the President asking for full details on how the Idaho Power Co. obtained fast tax write-offs for dams it is building on the Snake River between Idaho and Oregon.

The company subsequently decided not to accept the write-offs. Kefauver advocates federal construction of a single high dam on the Snake River which would flood the three Idaho Power sites. The Senate last month passed a bill to authorize a federal dam but the House hasn't acted.

Porter Seeking Support Of Ban On Dictatorships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Porter (D-Ore) is seeking to drum up support for his proposal to ban use of Mutual Security money in any Latin American "dictatorship."

In a letter to House colleagues, Porter said he plans to offer his proposal as an amendment to the Mutual Security Appropriation Bill scheduled to reach the House floor late next week.

He described his proposal as designed to "favor Latin American democracies and to avoid identifying the United States with Latin American dictatorships."

Porter said his proposal would not affect health programs that transcend national boundaries and would leave to the State Department the question of what countries are dictator-ruled.

The congressman said that in recent congressional appearances Assistant Secretary of State Roy Rubottom has classed the Dominican Republic as a dictatorship.

Porter has asked for State Department views on Venezuela, Cuba and Nicaragua "in particular" but has received no reply.

Porter said he believes "what little military advantage we gain from concessions by the dictators is as nothing compared to the disadvantages we suffer by our neutralistic policy which does not distinguish between the democracies and the dictators."

He said he based this belief on correspondence received from Latin America as well as recent visits to Puerto Rico, Costa Rica, Colombia and Panama.

"Since when couldn't the United States stand up for democracy against dictatorship?" Porter asked. "Who says we are so weak we have to appease dictators whose government are based on greed and terror?"
