Hoffa Case Goes To Federal Jury

WASHINGTON — The James R. Hoffa bribery-conspiracy case goes to a Federal Court jury today for its decision.

Federal District Judge Burnita S. Matthews convened court a half hour early to deliver her hour-long instructions to the jury on legal points.

The crucial question the jury must decide is whether Hoffa hired John Cye Cheasty, 49, a New York lawyer-investigator, as a lawyer or as a spy within the ranks of the Senate Rackets Committee.

Opposing lawyers completed their final arguments to the jury yesterday, assailing and defending Cheasty who provided most of the government's testimony against the 44-year-old Teamsters Union vice president.

THE RUSSIAN SHAKEUP

Power Exercised By Top Soviet Chief Is Estimated

(This is the last of a series about key figures in the purge in Soviet Russia. Previous reports have been about the men who lost their jobs. Today's article reports on the man who gained strength through the purge.)

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON — U.S. experts on Russia were reported split today on their estimates of the amount of real power now exercised by Soviet Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev in the wake of the Kremlin shakeup.

So far they have come up with three estimates covering major possibilities:

1. Khrushchev is well along the way to becoming a virtual dictator. The system of collective rule which was installed upon Stalin's death four years ago is doomed.
2. Khrushchev is still the "first among equals" or the "chairman of the board" of a collective rule system. With his most formidable critics out of the way, however, he can now expect far more support and much less opposition.
3. Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov may be the real strong man. Zhukov represents the military power, and Khrushchev could not have continued as Communist party boss without his support.

Information Lacking

These varied theories reflect a lack of hard information.

State Department officials have been deeply interested in reports from Communist sources, mainly in Eastern Europe, that Khrushchev's foes in the Presidium precipitated the crisis that resulted in their ouster. They were V. M. Molotov, Lazar Kaganovich, Georgi Malenkov and Dmitri Shepilov.

Khrushchev has accused the four of trying to seize power. They have been denounced for wanting to return to Stalinism, which seems to suggest that they favored a reversion to dictatorship

More Power Seen

Informants said that what the Khrushchev group now does with the men may indicate how he will develop his power, assuming he is the strong man. Harsh action would probably bring the conclusion that Khrushchev is building himself into a dictator by wiping out opposition.

But if these men are simply consigned to political oblivion, the tendency will be to think that the present Soviet leadership wants to continue to prove that it has really abandoned the ruthless ways of Stalin, that it wants collective leadership to work, and that while it cannot tolerate conspiracy in high places it has some tolerance for the conspirators as individuals.

One of the most interesting aspects of the shakeup is that the new men added to the enlarged Presidium generally represent regional interests. They have not heretofore been identified with the national administration of the Soviet Union.

This may be linked with Khrushchev's efforts to decentralize operations of industry in the Soviet Union, but it also may represent a power play on his part to bring into top party positions men who owe him their success.

Everyone seems to agree that Zhukov's support was vital to Khrushchev's survival, but beyond that the marshal's role is highly uncertain.
