Britain's Royal Family Proves Great Sales Team; Americans Admire Royalty

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON — Britain's royal family is one of the greatest sales teams in the world.

Its garden party this week for of the American Bar Assn. and their relatives—was a demonstration of compelling advertising for Britain.

Two hours' exposure to Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Prince Philip, the Princess Royal and the Duchess of Kent made some of the Americans ecstatic.

Cecil E. Burney, of Corpus Christi, Tex., called the Queen "a honey."

Said Charles N. Rhyne, District of Columbia, new president of the Bar Assn.: "She's just like a Dresden doll. The Queen Mother is the most regal person I've ever seen in my life."

"And the Prince," broke in Mrs. Rhyne, "he's just so handsome."

Said Mrs. Herbert Brownell, wife of the U.S. attorney general: "She's (the Queen) magnificent. She's heavenly. And he—he's so handsome."

John Ranck, of Lancaster, Pa., smiled broadly.

"She's a real doll," he said. "And the Prince is a charmer."

Mrs. Nora Snyder, of Kansas City, took a deep breath.

"I was just thrilled, absolutely thrilled to meet the Prince."

The Americans who spilled out over the Buckingham Palace lawn made no secret of the fact that they came to see, meet and

Logging Company Requests Right To Use Rogue River For Log Rafting Purposes

COOS BAY — Army Engineers Wednesday had under advisement the application of a Gold Beach lumber company for a permit to dump, raft and tow logs on the lower Rogue River.

Proponents and opponents of the request of the J & S Lumber Co. concluded arguments here Tuesday at the second of two hearings conducted by Col. Jackson Graham of the Portland district Army Engineers. The first was held in February at Gold Beach.

Lined up against the rafting proposal were sportsmen and fisheries and conservation groups. They contended large-scale rafting on the lower Rogue would raise problems of loose logs and debris, and create a safety hazard to fishermen and wildlife.

Logging interests, however, argued that it would be too costly to build logging roads and the river afforded a natural route downstream. They said they preferred to use the Rogue during the months from April to October.

Sportsmen and fishing groups, backed by resort owners, indicated they might be agreeable to a period from Dec. 1 to March 15, before the salmon runs.

A representative of the Western States Plywood Co. at Port Orford, Joseph D. Tomascheski, said lumber interests feel that log rafts cause less scarring of sandbars and riffles than the boats of sports fishermen. But Cameron Thom, counsel for the Wedderburn Resort Owners Assn., replied extensively that river rafting would present a hazard that already had had one near-fatal incident.

Thom said last May a log broke loose from a raft, crashed through three lines of anglers' boats, and carried one boat with four persons far downstream.

Log rafting on the Rogue has been conducted on a limited basis. The J & S Lumber Co. proposes to enlarge its operations on the river.

MEAT INSPECTED

The first full-time meat inspection in Oregon started this week in slaughter plants in Jackson and Josephine counties. Robert J. Steward, director of the state department of agriculture, said that other areas will be added to the program as fast as possible. Six members of the pilot inspection crew are working in the Jackson and Josephine county plants to train local men appointed as lay inspectors.
