The Vancouver Mounties are playing as if this is their last opportunity to snare a Pacific Coast League championship—and that's a strong possibility with the announced decision of the New York Giants to move to San Francisco. The Mounties took advantage of a twin bill with San Diego Monday to pull within 2 1/2 games of the league leading San Francisco Seals, who took an 8-5 decision from Seattle. The Canadians beat the Padres 3-1 and 2-0, dropping games off the pace and half a game behind Hollywood.

The Stars fell victim to the Sacramento Solons 3-2. Basement-dwelling Portland edged Los Angeles 5-4.

Home runs gave the Mounties a come-from-behind first game triumph. Johnny Jorgensen hit his sixth of the season to square the count 1-1 and shortstop Buddy Peterson, a former Padre player, iced it with his seventh round tripper of the year, good for two runs.

That's a weird game of Russian roulette, with a strange twist, that Milwaukee, St. Louis and Brooklyn are playing in the National League pennant race. You're dead if you shoot a blank.

The Braves, even with a 6 1/2-game lead, can't afford to ease off. The Cardinals, in second after their worst slump in a decade, can't afford anything less than a quick winning string. And for the third-place Dodgers it's Brooklyn against the world with nobody a pushover any more.

Challenger Rademacher Calm In Training Camp

By JACK HEWINS
SEATTLE, Aug. 19.—This is tapering-off day in the champion's camp as Floyd Patterson winds up training for a Thursday bout that manager Gus D'Amato calls the "most heavy, publicized fight in 30 years."

"Not even the Dempsey-Tunney fights captured the interest of press and public as this one has," D'Amato said Monday while Patterson was winding up his strenuous training program in Kent, Wash.

Some 20 miles away, at Issaquah, challenger Pete Rademacher planned one more session of heavy work Tuesday before breaking camp. The Olympic champion from Grandview, Wash., and Columbus, Ga., retains his air of quiet confidence as fight time nears.

Although the majority of his bouts as an amateur—he had 79 and won all but 7—were booked for three two-minute rounds, 210-pound Pete says he has no qualms over the prospect of going 15 three-minute rounds against the champion.

Challenger Is Calm
"I'm actually calmer now than I was before the Olympics," said the powerful challenger last night. "Then I didn't know what fighting styles I would be up against. But now I've watched Patterson five times on television. I know his style. I feel I'm ready to meet any type of attack the champion may select and I plan to let him set the pattern."

Panning No Obstacle
The fact that the fight has been panned as a "mismatch" by ex-fighters, ring officials, a congressman and many writers has not bothered any of the principals. The placid Patterson, refusing to consider Rademacher anything but a dangerous opponent, has stuck faithfully to a stiff training program. The champion will go into the bout weighing about 184 and, D'Amato says, "in peak condition, physically and mentally."

Promoter Jack Hurley, biting back acidly at the detractors as "tools of the International Boxing Club," is stacking up a pile of shekels from advance ticket sales. These had reached some $200,000 Monday and most local observers were expecting a $400,000 sellout.

Backers Take Gamble
That would be the total income from this fight, which will not be televised nor broadcast over radio. Hurley will take 40 per cent and Rademacher's Georgia backers 60 per cent, which leaves them at least $10,000 short of meeting their guarantee to Patterson. Should Rademacher win, they feel they will be in position to recoup.

Neither fighter appeared worried by money matters. Patterson planned only a brief loosening-up workout in the Kent Junior High School gymnasium late Tuesday afternoon. Rademacher expected to step his usual three or more rounds with sparring at Issaquah and work a hit on the bag.

Both fighters will break camp Wednesday and rest until the weigh-in scheduled for Thursday noon. Asked what the champion would prefer for relaxation, a member of his entourage said: "That boy would just like to go downtown and shoot a game of pool."

A KISS BY WIRE—While Olympic heavyweight boxing champ Pete Rademacher works out at his training camp in Issaquah, Wash., his wife, Margaret, and daughter, Susan, keep in close daily contact by phone, from Yakima. Here, Susan sends him a telephone kiss—wrong end of phone, but still noisy. Rademacher will meet Floyd Patterson in Seattle Aug. 22 for the world's heavyweight title.

Archie Moore Signs For September Bout
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Archie Moore, a goateed, mustached and apparently ageless — has signed with boyish-faced Tony Anthony for their Sept. 20 lightweight championship bout.

Under the contract signed Monday, champion Moore gets all the money for television, $70,000 in addition to $20,000 of the gate. Anthony, a dapper 22-year-old, receives 33-1-3 of the gate, after Moore's $20,000 has been taken off the top.

With a top of $25, the house is scaled to do $116,000. The national television fight will be blacked out within a 150-mile radius of Los Angeles.

Moore will train near San Diego, Calif., Anthony in Ocean Park, near here.
