

New Photo Classes Added; Hobbies, Crafts Expanded

Three new classes have been added to photography competition. Tinted photographs will be entered in both amateur and professional sections in addition to the usual black and white prints. Competition in colored 35 millimeter slides for amateurs has been revived after two years without that class.

A new manager for the hobby department, Jack Church, has been appointed by Dick Turley, fair manager. This is a relatively new department and from the interest shown so far, should easily become the most popular. Almost everybody has a hobby, reports Church, and the Fair is a good place to show off your hobby.

BAR GOVERNORS

PORTLAND — Election of four members of the Oregon State Bar's board of governors was announced Monday.

They are Otto R. Skopil Jr., Salem; C. S. Emmons, Albany; T. Leland Brown, The Dalles; and Clarence D. Phillips, Portland.

COPPER ON MARKET

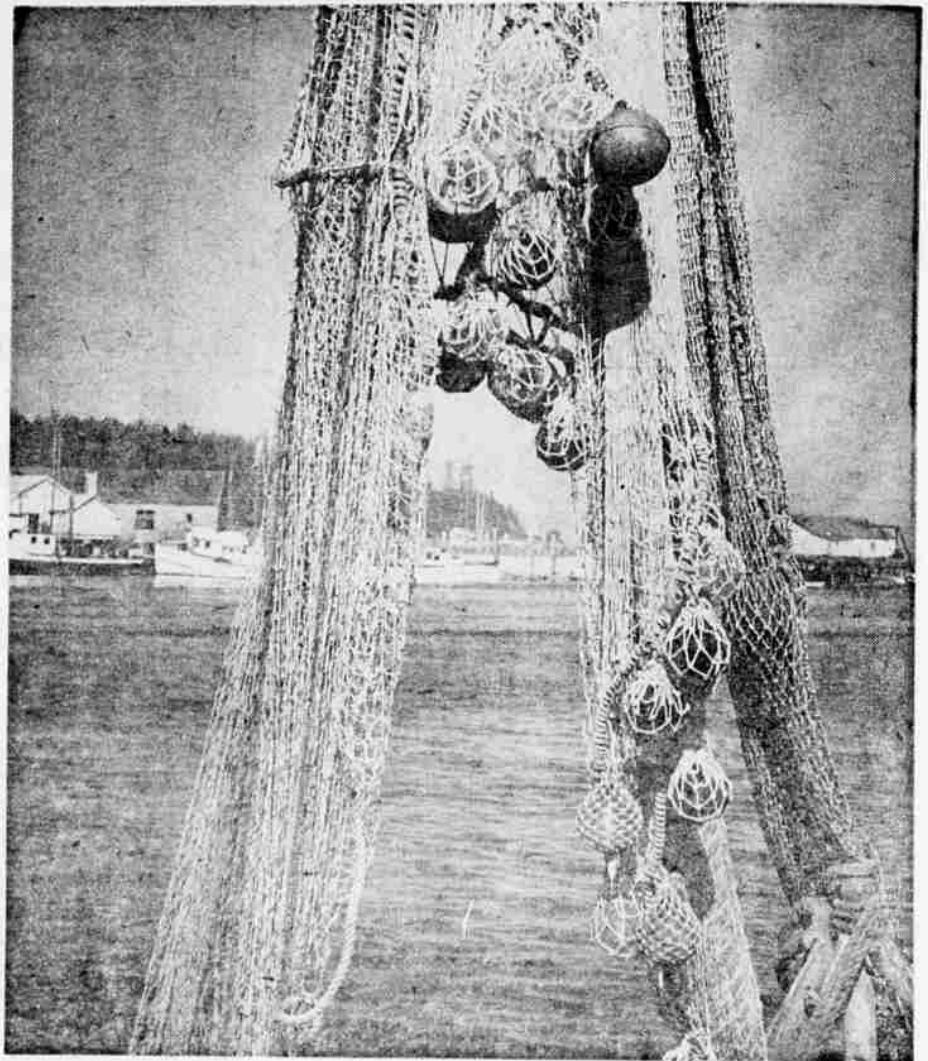

LONDON — Britain announced Tuesday that 27,000 tons of copper from the government stockpile will be put on the market as an economy move.

Classes have been greatly revised this year, to provide for better competition. A glassed-in exhibit case will be provided by the fair board for valuable or fragile articles, so that the exhibitors need not worry about their safety.

Douglas County craftsmen will see many new features at the fair, according to Mrs. Jack West, general department superintendent. Increased space between exhibits will allow people to better observe them. Increased lighting will also help display them more advantageously. The new community building, which will house the department again this year, has been newly painted and landscaped.

Division heads under Mrs. West are Mrs. Harry Brubaker, ceramics; and Mrs. Frank Brown miscellaneous arts. The superintendents noted that entries are open to any Douglas County resident. It is not necessary to belong to a club to compete.

The fair will again feature a school arts section. Elimination contests were held at the schools in the county this spring by the school staffs. Top winners in each class at the schools will be shown at the fair where they will compete with exhibits from schools all over the county. Most school grades are judged alone.

PRIZE SEASCAPE entered at the fair last year was this photograph entered by Luverne Von Schrittz of Roseburg. The picture competed in the amateur division.
