

Confidence Expressed Over Producing Oil Well, After Tests Appear Successful

OCEAN CITY, Wash. (AP)—Sunshine Mining Co. officials made preparations Wednesday to sink three more wells after watching a tawny spray Tuesday mark what may be Washington's debut as the country's 31st oil state.

The spray, gushing from the company's Sunshine-Tanner-Medina No. 1 well two miles south of the Pacific Beach resort town, settled down on a crowd of uncaring spectators.

Gov. Rosellini and Sunshine officials turned the valves which marked the start of final production tests on the well. The tests, which will take about 60 days to complete, will determine whether the well will be a commercial producer.

Original estimates placed the daily oil flow from the well at 400 barrels of high gravity oil, worth about $3.75 to $4 a barrel. After Tuesday's run the estimate went down to 200 barrels a day, still twice what company officials said would be considered commercial production.

When Rosellini turned the valve to start the test, gas sprayed from the nozzle for three minutes. The gas then became mixed with oil and then pure paraffin base oil spewed from the nozzle in a steady stream.

The initial flow of oil was directed into a sand sump and then to a 500-gallon storage tank. "At this point it looks wonderful," Robert M. Hardy, Sunshine's president, said as oil flowed from the well into the tanks.

Hardy said the oil was coming from a 34-foot thick layer of sand at a depth of from 3,932 to 3,966 feet.

The Sunshine president said the firm has staked three additional drilling locations close to the well and is making preparations to start drilling immediately.

Bert Cole, state land commissioner, whose job it will be to make sure Washington gets its 12 1/2 per cent royalty interest on oil produced, said:

"We have a producing oil well—the first in our state. I am confident of this now after reviewing the technical data and witnessing today's events. I am optimistic about the role of Washington as the 31st oil producing state."

The well was spudded in on June 19 and was drilled to its present depth on Aug. 2.

New York Milk Strike Ended

NEW YORK (AP)—A Teamsters strike that threatened to cut off milk supplies for 12 million consumers in the metropolitan area was settled today.

Representatives of Local 770 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and the Dairy Transport Assn. reached agreement after a five-hour conference.

Monday night 950 drivers who transport raw milk from upstate dairy farms to the metropolitan area walked out in a contract dispute with the association. The association represents 25 milk-hauling concerns.

No general shortage of milk developed before the strike ended.

The new contract provides a 70-cent-an-hour wage increase over a three-year period, with 40 cents the first year, and 15 cents in each of the next two years.

Pre-strike wages ranged from $1.87 to $2.07 an hour.

The agreement also provides a pension program, increased vacation and holiday time, and other fringe benefits.

Only land that has been completely cut and will be used to grow a new crop of timber is eligible for the program. Once the land is classified under the program, its status remains the same if it is sold, unless the land is no longer used to raise timber.

The DFPA will recommend to the state forester any land it thinks might be eligible, and the state office will send applications to the owners. But owners do not need to wait and can file an application now.

Land under applications will be inspected and hearings will be held in the county during January and February on the applications. Fire patrol tax levies will not be affected by the deferment.

Applications and an explanation of the law are available from the state forester and will be available soon at the DFPA office. The deferment permits the land owner to pay 5 cents per acre each year instead of the regular tax rate to encourage growing a second crop of timber on cut-over land. When the area is logged again, the owner pays 12 1/2 per cent of the stumpage value.

Timber Land Tax Deferments May Be Applied For

Land owners who want to take advantage of tax deferment on timber land which has been cut over have until Oct. 1 to file an application with the state forester in Salem to get their claim checked for next year. About 500,000 acres in Douglas County might be eligible for the program, according to sources at the Douglas Forest Protective Assn.

Applications and an explanation of the law are available from the state forester and will be available soon at the DFPA office. The deferment permits the land owner to pay 5 cents per acre each year instead of the regular tax rate to encourage growing a second crop of timber on cut-over land. When the area is logged again, the owner pays 12 1/2 per cent of the stumpage value.

There are about as many safarists as there are individuals," he said. He warned people who are interested in taking such a trip to start making arrangements two years in advance. Civilization is pushing big game in Africa back and the game is disappearing, he said.

The game hunter told of his experiences in shooting buffalo, rhinoceros and elephants. During the 30-day safari Bailey, his father and a guide traveled 1,800 miles in a power wagon. "Because of the Mau Mau uprisings regulations concerning weapons were tight, and it took three hours to get the rifles through customs," Bailey said.

"Many of the business firms there are run by natives of India. The natives of British East Africa are well dressed and clean. They wear shorts, some kind of a shirt and make their shoes out of tires," the hunter said.

Jo-Jo Must Go-Go, Say Authorities

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J. (AP)—The long arm of the law has finally curled around Jo-Jo, a six-foot boa constrictor who has been run out of two towns in less than a week.

The 6-year-old reptile has been sentenced to a lifetime stretch at the nearby Watchung Nature Museum.

Jo-Jo first came to public notice last week, when the board of health in Clifton ordered his owner, Abraham Kievit, to remove the animal from his home and get it out of town.

Kievit, who had raised Jo-Jo from infancy, reluctantly turned him over to 17-year-old Ronald Piper of South Orange.

Piper, who hopes to make reptiles his life's work, enjoyed caring for his pet and feeding him live rats. He literally became attached to the animal, wrapping him around his neck at times to show his affection.

But the happy idyll ended when police told Piper that Jo-Jo had to go-go. The youth pleaded that it would be nine years before the snake would be strong enough to crush a man, but the law was adamant.

As he took Jo-Jo to the museum, Piper sadly remarked, "I'll go to see him every time I get a chance."

Canary and Gray Colors For Men Next Spring

The organization of manufacturers' salesmen and sales representatives adopted a motion to promote the canary and gray color combination for spring wear.

Leo Koppman of Dallas, Tex., said the basic color theme will be introduced at all 28 MAC 1957 fall shows. He said it will appear in everything the man wears.

Koppman said the campaign already is under way in Texas, where the idea originated about six months ago.
