

MATCHING MUSCLES WITH A 700- POUND STEER, the steer wrestler gets a good grip on the horns and prepares to dig in with his heels to bring the critter, which outweighs him 3 to 1, to a sudden stop. Then, working against the stop watch, he'll twist him down till all four feet are free, pointing in the same direction. Keeping the steer running straight is the hazer, the mounted cowboy on left.

HITTING THE HARD, HARD GROUND, a bull rider gets dusted by a high-kicking brahma. The rider must hang on for eight seconds, has only a loose rope without knots or hitches to help him keep his precarious seat. To make the mean tempered bull even madder, the bull rope has a bell underneath the animal's belly and a flank strap that is pulled up tight as the bull leaves the chute.

A FIRM GRIP ON A HURRICANE is maintained by this bareback rider who clings tenaciously to the simple leather handhold on the rigging for a violent eight second ride. He must spur the unbridled horse over the point of the shoulders on the first jump out of the chute to qualify and lick him well during the ride to score high. He can't touch any part of the horse with his free hand, but there are no rules restricting what the bronc can do to dump him.

Top Animals To Be Sold

Top 4-H FFA livestock exhibits at the fair will go on the block at 5 p.m. Saturday in the annual fat stock auction sponsored by the Roseburg Rotary Club.

Only animals exhibited according to the rules and graded "good" or better will be sold. Assistance will be given in disposing of animals that grade lower for at least the prevailing market price for their grade.

No club member may offer for auction more than two market exhibits of beef, sheep, or hogs. Marketing animals sold must weigh 80 pounds for lambs, between 170 and 230 pounds for hogs, and between 750 and 1150 pounds for beef. There will be a 12 hour shrinkage period before weighing.

At the sale, hogs and lambs will be sold first and beef last. In each type, the champion animal will be placed according to market grade. All animals judged to be of the highest grade will receive blue ribbons. A champion animal will be selected from the highest grade in each class.

OVER ESTIMATE

BALTIMORE (AP) — William H. Dawson, Jr., fined $10 for disorderly conduct on a street corner, had boasted to Patrolman Joseph Hudgins:

"If you lock me up it will take three policemen."

The magistrate asked later how many officers made the arrest. Patrolman Hudgins, about four inches shorter than the 6-3, 190-pound defendant, replied:

"Just one, your honor."

New Parking Lot Added To Space

Addition of a new parking lot north of the track boosts parking capacity at the fair to 4,000 cars. Ample and free parking is promised to fairgoers, according to Fair Manager Dick Turley. The traffic, as at most of the big events at the fairgrounds, is to be handled by the Douglas County Sheriff's Reserve. Most of the parking will be done in the large open lots to the west of the fairgrounds. Lanes will be left open in the parking areas so that cars may leave at any time. The reserve is to be on duty through all four days of the fair.

ISLAND OWNER
HONOLULU (AP) — Photographer John Florea says he is now the owner of an island in Indonesia. Florea just returned from the southeast Asia country, where President Sukarno made him a present of the island, in return for travelling with the rebel forces in the fight against the Dutch for Indonesian independence. Florea said the island is named Pulau Psing. It's four miles long, two miles wide, and populated by 200 people. The photographer said he may apply for "foreign aid."
